—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AT LA HARPE, Ill., a girl of 18 returned to her father's house at midnight, smelling of whisky, accompanied by a married man, who had taken her to a drinking party.

The father shot the married man and killed him, and the coroner's jury returned an "open verdict," neither excusing nor blaming the father.

This is a strange happening in a prohibition country. Where could the married man get the whisky that he gave to the 18-year-old girl?

RUSSIA RECEIVED the sad news yesterday that New York, biggest, richest city, is incorrigibly "capitalistic." In a total Manhattan borough vote of more than 363,000 the lonesome Communist candidate for borough president, got only 1,795 votes.

FOR SOME, lack of employment is serious, although many consider it a sort of "theoretical" condition.

Mrs. Anna Nathan, of Philadelphia, 21 years old, took seriously the fact that her husband Charles had had no work for a year, neither food nor money in the house. While he was "trying once more" she shot and killed her three children, then killed herself. In a letter to her husband she said:

"I guess the undertaker will get paid. But I'll be dead, and I won't have to worry."

A similar story comes from Delaware, O. There Mrs. James A. Horner, 30 years old, shot and killed her 9-year-old daughter, wounded her baby daughter, probably fatally, then killed herself, fearing destitution.

BERTRAND RUSSELL says permanent peace will come after another big war, to be followed by a "world government" ruling all the earth.

If peace does not come until one government rules the earth, Bertrand Russell will have been dead 10,000 years when it comes.

Even if Japan should attack us, says Russell, if our people would keep perfectly quiet and peaceful, only "resisting passively," Japan "couldn't get any further east, say, than Nevada."

In Manchuria, where the Chinese are resisting only passively, Japan seems to find no difficulty in going forward.

THE AMERICAN character would have to change considerably in order to make only "passive resistance" possible.

WARNING FOR young women trying to look like skeletons, eliminating all fat from the body.

We are constantly bombarded by "ions," minute electrified particles, constantly attacking our tissues. A thin layer of fat protects the body from this bombardment.

Dr. Lark-Horovitz, of Purdue University, proves this, and banting young ladies should take warning.

AGE DOES NOT wither, if the mind remains active. "The Merchant of Venice" was much applauded in Cleveland on Tuesday, with Otis Skinner, 73 years old, as Shylock and Miss Maude Adams, 59 years old, as Portia.

Miss Adams wore high laced shoes, a pleasant relief from modern female footgear that looks like a gilded set of Shetland pony harness.

YESTERDAY, YOU might have seen off the Japanese coast a small, uninhabited island. It isn't there now.

The sea swallowed it yesterday following a severe earthquake that destroyed telegraph wires, overturned stone fences. The disappearance of the island must make the courageous Japanese thoughtful. If an earthquake could swallow a small island it might swallow a big one.

THE ABYSSINIAN King and Emperor, Haile Selassie, calling himself "King of Kings, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Elect of God and Light of the World," has inaugurated a "modern government" with a two-chamber legislature, and celebrated in a golden coach, once owned by Kaiser William.

A picturesque feature was a banquet of 10,000 Ethiopian tribesmen, wearing lions' skins on their backs, head-dresses of lion manes, carrying shields of rhinoceros hide and eating RAW MEAT. It is easy to call yourself "civilized" and "elect of God," less easy to BE civilized.

TWO REPUBLICANS, three Democrats just elected are wet.

The two Republicans from Ohio and Pennsylvania demand repeal of the prohibition amendment with light wines and beer while we wait. There are 150 wet members in the House of Representatives now, a gain of 80 in three years, an important straw in the anti-prohibition wind.

Found Fire

GERTRUDE WOESSNER

Miss Woessner, 20, East street, who smelled smoke, hurried to the street and gave the alarm that brought apparatus to fight fire today at the Pittsburgh Bag and Burlap Company.

FIRE IN PLANT ROUTS SCORE

Twenty employes of the Pittsburgh Bag and Burlap Company, four of them women, were forced into the street today when flames swept through the third and fourth floors of the company's building at 869-73 Progress street, North Side. Although the flames were confined to the top floors of the four-story structure, dense smoke from smoldering burlap forced the employes from the lower floors.

The fire is believed to have originated in the rear of the fourth floor. Flames broke through the roof and spread to the third floor. The cause of the fire was not learned.

Arthur Evans, manager of the plant, said the damage would be restricted to the two top floors, used for storage of bags and burlap.

Ralph Capone Home, Ready to Surrender

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Ralph Capone arrived from the East today and will surrender soon on his income tax conviction, his attorney informed the United States marshal's office.

Chief Deputy Marshal Edward King said Capone would be taken to the county jail and possibly lodged with his brother, "Scarface Al," and probably would be taken to Leavenworth Friday or Saturday.

GORDON HERE TO RELEASE BANK FUNDS

Secretary Explains Plans For Aiding Depositors To Financiers of District

William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, is in Pittsburgh today conferring with bankers and business leaders with a view to instituting his plan for freeing money in closed state banks before Christmas.

Gordon talked with James C. Chaplin, vice president of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, and others regarding his plan, already operative in Philadelphia where he expects to make $9,000,000 available to depositors in the next two months.

THREE PROJECTS

The three-fold plan involves immediate payment of cash on hand in the closed banks to depositors through a private banker; provision for credit at the various stores and business houses for depositors, and quick and efficient liquidation of the banks' assets through a central corporation.

The banking secretary was seeking to find someone to serve as the private banker and also to obtain assurance from merchants as to credit to depositors.

PLANS STUDIED

Plans to reorganize the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., still are in an indefinite state, but within a few days meeting of officers and stockholders of the closed institution probably will be held, which may lead to the completion of a concrete program, E. R. Crawford, president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company and a director of the closed institution, said today.

This followed the announcement from the office of Comptroller of the Currency John W. Pole in Washington, that several suggested plans had been presented to him for consideration.

Negotiations are understood to have been held with several important banking groups in New York, among which were officers of the Chase National Bank, but no definite stage has been reached in these conferences.

DEALS SAVE SIX IN POLICE SHIFT

Political deals engineered during the election campaign today were believed to have at least forestalled the dismissal of three police inspectors and as many magistrates.

Inspector Joseph Elsner, for the past two months on an enforced vacation from his Strip district, today was transferred to the Mt. Washington - West End district. Elsner had been one of the inspectors slated to be dismissed for failure to support Mayor Charles H. Kline's councilmanic slate in the primary.

SLATED TO GO

Elsner, Inspector Dennis Hennessey, of the South Side, and Inspector Charles Faulkner, of the North Side, were reported sched-

JAPAN FORCE CHARGED BY CHINESE

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

MUKDEN, Nov. 5.—The most severe fighting which has occurred during the Japanese campaign in Manchuria was in progress today 20 miles south of Tsitsihar, where 5,000 Chinese soldiers under Gen. Ma Chan-Shan launched a desperate attack upon a Japanese expeditionary force of less than a thousand.

Reports reaching Japanese military headquarters here indicated that heavy casualties had occurred on both sides.

The Japanese detachment was sent into Ma Chan-Shan's province of Heilungkiang to guard engineers making repairs on bridges over the Nonni River, including a railroad bridge.

Defying the Japanese, Ma Chan-Shan, who is accused of receiving aid from Soviet Russia, sent back word that he intended to resist the Japanese with all the forces at his command, and proposed to drive them out of Manchuria.

The Japanese charged the Chinese troops misled them by displaying a white flag as they neared the bridge and then without warning launched their attack.

As the fighting developed, it spread for nine miles along the river, centering at the wrecked railway bridge.

Japanese Reinforcements Rushed, Tokio Alarmed

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The Japanese war office issued a communique tonight announcing "positive and effective measures" had been decided upon to cope with the threatening position facing Japanese occupation troops at the Nonni River Bridge in Manchuria.

The communique said reinforcements were being sent to the scene of battle.

Yesterday's fighting seemingly has precluded all hope that China and Japan might patch up their troubles by November 16, the date set by the League of Nations for withdrawal of Japanese soldiers from the occupied areas.

Judge Puts Children Ahead of Dry Law

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Robert Williams refused today to sentence Mr. and Mrs. John Whitfield, alleged bootleggers, of near Tahlequah, until "good Christian people" there arrange to care for the couple's children. The judge said:

"These churches think they have done their duty when they complain against bootleggers and have sent them to jail, but they should know that taking care of children is more important."

Nesbit's Daughter Still Unconscious

Billion Dollar Christmas Spending Forecast

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—The American people probably will spend well over a billion dollars in theirannual Christmas shopping, federal experts closely in touch with retail trade conditions, estimate today.

This gigantic volume of business, although less than normal, should prove an excellent midwinter stimulant for many classes of trade and industry.

Under average conditions of business, money in circulation increases by $300,000,000 from the end of November until the last shopping day before Christmas. Experts said that five or six times that amount usually goes for holiday shopping. One expert said:

"Naturally Christmas shopping will not be so heavy this year as during the past few years. There are millions of persons out of work and buying will be on a conservative basis.

"Nevertheless, the custom of buying Christmas presents and spending money during the yuletide is deeply rooted in the American people. Even in depressions of the past, Christmas buying has been heavy. Those who have money or are making money and have credit will 'loosen up' for Christmas with a resultant excellent reaction on business."

TWO JOB CAMP SITES CHOSEN

HARRISBURG, Nov. 5.—First construction camps for unemployed men, as proposed recently by Gov. Pinchot, will be established at Normalville, Fayette County, and Bentleyville, Washington County.

Details of the plan were announced today by Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis, who said National Guard equipment would leave here at once to build the camps. Applications for employment, however, will not be received until formal notice has been given by Gov. Pinchot, Gen. Davis said. Each camp will house 70 men who will be employed in road construction in nearby territory.

The two sites were selected because unemployment is most acute in those districts and because road work is to be started first in those sections, Davis said. Other construction camps for unemployed are to be established in the near future, most of the tentative sites being in western counties.

Reprisal Over Boss' Election Defeat Held Motive

A store, a barber shop and a home were stoned with bricks and the auto of an election board official was damaged by vandals during the early morning hours.

Theodore Uzelac, 148 Watkins avenue, said to be an Independent party worker, awoke this morning to find the window in his grocery store, over which he lives, shattered. A brick lay inside the store.

Uzelac's son-in-law, awakened about 3 a. m. by the crash of glass, found two windows in his home, 1 Shaw avenue, broken by a brick.

Going to his barber shop at 173 Watkins avenue, Milos Milasinovich found the windows there broken and four bricks laying beside his shattered showcases.

He said the people were tired of prohibition.

LAWRENCE MEN CLAIM VICTORY

Mt. Lebanon 'Zero' Return Arouses Independents; Ballot Impounding Rushed

With followers of James J. Coyne claiming election of David L. Lawrence for County Commissioner despite a lead of 8,764 for C. M. Barr in the unofficial returns, Independents today were fighting an apparent attempt to steal the election.

First evidence of irregularities came with receipt at the prothonotary's office of the return sheet from the Second District, Fourth Ward, Mt. Lebanon. This showed no votes for Barr, although the sheet posted outside the polling place election night gave Barr 238 votes.

Mt. Lebanon, strong Independent territory, gave both Barr and his running mate on the Independent ticket, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, a heavy vote. Independent leaders declare it inconceivable that there should have been a zero district for Barr in that community.

COYNE CLAIMS

Coyne henchmen were contending that the official count would show Lawrence, the Democratic nominee, backed by the Kline-Coyne organization, the winner over Barr for third place on the Commissioner ticket by several thousand votes. The unofficial returns with all districts reported, showed Barr leading by 8,764.

Mansfield	186,530
McGovern	178,712
Barr	138,557
Lawrence	129,793

Mansfield got just 61 more votes than in the primary.

The Independents' fear of an attempt to steal the election from Barr originated in a report received at their campaign headquarters that followers of the Republican organization planned to hi-jack trucks carrying ballot boxes to the sheriff's office and "stuff" them for Lawrence.

Prior to the report they had obtained a court order from Judge Elder W. Marshall ordering every ballot box in the county impounded pending the official tabulation of votes.

Last night, the Independents

VOTE CHEATER GETS YEAR

The commonwealth won the first round in the prosecution of primary election fraud cases today when the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Peter Bowers, 27, Strip resident.

Bowers, the first defendant tried in the vote cheat cases, was sentenced by Visiting Judge Samuel L. Reed to serve one year in jail and pay a fine of $100, his sentence to begin with date of his arrest, September 14. Replying to a plea of defense counsel that an example should not be made of the young man, the court declared:

"This will let anyone who comes in here and is convicted of violating the election laws know that he will get what is coming to him, not only from this court but any other court."

Bowers, alleged to live at 1518½ Penn avenue, in the Second Ward, was said to have registered

Gandhi, in Loin Cloth, Bows to King, Queen

Ascending the crimson-carpeted staircase to the royal picture gallery he bowed before King George and Queen Mary with his hands palm to palm, in the manner of a Hindu priest pronouncing a benediction. It was pronounced the most extraordinary scene ever witnessed within the palace walls.

While the King smiled benighly on his visitor it was noticed that others surveyed his bare legs and shaven head with a critical eye. The King exchanged greetings with other guests, numbering about 600 and including many robed Maharajas, and summoned the Mahatma for a private talk in the royal study.

They talked in private for some time and afterward the Mahatma had a short conversation with Queen Mary. Then he left before anyone else and his departure caused a minor sensation among those who held it to be a breach of court etiquette. Afterward Gandhi said:

"Both their majesties were charming. I also liked the Prince of Wales."

ROOSEVELT VICTORY OVER SMITH IMPRESSES PROGRESSIVES

SENATORS EYE GOVERNOR FOR '32

Three Favor New Yorker; Hoover, Water Power Policy Receives Praise

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Senate Progressives discussed with manifest approval today Gov. Roosevelt's impressive victory in Tuesday's balloting over Alfred E. Smith.

Without exception the group was of the opinion the election result would materially strengthen the New Yorker's strength nationally, and three of them, speaking off the record, expressed the hope he would receive the Democratic presidential nomination.

They would not say this now, say they would boll Hoover next year.

The Progressives as they themselves expressed it, in a choice between Hoover and Roosevelt would favor the latter.

The Progressives view with favor Roosevelt's progressive water power policies. Some of them, such as Senator Norris, Rep., of Nebraska, Senator La Follette, Rep., of Wisconsin, and Senator Blaine (Rep., of Wisconsin), hold that the public utility issue unsettles the entire economic problem in this country.

Smith in Defeat Accepts Public Will

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who opposed the prohibition amendment favored by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, bows to the rule of the majority which sided with Roosevelt, Smith in a statement said:

"The constitution is the people's law, and can only be altered or amended by direct vote of our citizens. On Tuesday, they exercised their right in accordance with their judgment. I am a Democrat and believe very firmly in the rule of the majority. The general results of the election throughout the country is gratifying to Democrats."

HOUSE CONTROL MAY DISRUPT DEMOCRATS

Possibility of Southern Domination Already Has Party on Verge of Split

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The troubles of the Republicans in the House of Representatives were turned today, temporarily at least, to the Democrats.

With a plurality of two apparently greasing the way for the Democrats to assume control, they faced many of the difficulties which confronted the Republicans in obtaining party harmony.

Saved from the bitterness of a fight over a candidate for speaker through a general agreement on Representative Jack Garner of Texas the Democrats were confronted by various hurdles. They are:

Demands from Progressives, Republican and Democrat, for a liberalization of rules that will prevent bills from being smothered in committees and virtually upsetting organization control.

Possibility of bitter feeling among northern Democrats because under the seniority rule most of the committee chairmanships would go to Southern states, six to Texas alone.

Fight for position of floor leadership when Garner vacates the post for the speakership. Several candidates are in the field.

Democratic House leaders believe they can maintain party solidarity with much more ease than the Republicans, although they frankly recognize the growth of a bipartisan movement for progressive legislation which may not be acceptable to them.

M'FADDEN RAPS HOOVER POLICY ON DEBTS

Congressman Sees Effort To Saddle Costs of War On American Taxpayers

International News Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The administration is committed to revision or cancellation of European war debts, Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Banking Committee, declared today.

In a speech before the Institute of Current International Problems, he attacked the whole foreign financial policy of the administration, which "has entangled the United States in European affairs."

The Congressman assailed both the State Department and the Federal Reserve Board, and charged American prosperity had been "ruined" through a long "conspiracy to saddle" the cost of the war on American taxpayers. He said:

"It appears that under the Hoover-Laval understanding the French are to have the support of Washington in their demands and that, within the frameworks of the Young plan, some provision is to be made for reducing conditional annuities which Germany pays the Allied governments.

"In consideration for this concession by the Allies to Germany, the United States will consider its debt agreement with the Allies with a view to revision downwards, and the congressional debt funding provision may be revived for this purpose.

"The understanding gives France the unconditional payments from Germany, and in view of developments abroad, the administration may even agitate complete cancellation."

The change in America's policy of keeping war debts separate from reparations dates from the advent of the Hoover administration, McFadden charged.

FALSE REGISTRATION

Bowers testified he had moved from the First to the Second Ward August 15 and when he learned he could not vote in the Second Ward because he would not have lived there for 60 days before the primary, he went back and registered from the First Ward.

Indictment yesterday of P. J. O'Malley, Second Ward Republican chairman, for alleged unlawful payment of poll taxes in the Second Ward, is expected to be only the beginning of a long series of indictments in other wards for the same thing. The October grand jury, in its presentment, explained that it was only quitting its inquiry because the registration books, which the jury needed for comparison of the tax receipts, were needed for use at the election.

PROBE TO RESUME

The November grand jury, which has begun consideration of calendar cases, is expected to take up the tax probe where the October jury left off. It is expected it will take up the Fourth Ward first, as Howard Neely, Fourth Ward Republican chairman, had been subpenaed, but never was called because this ward was not reached.

Indictment of O'Malley was not a new experience for this turbulent Strip politician. He was sentenced to two years in jail in 1924 for stealing the ballot box of the Ninth District of the Second Ward at the September primary in 1923. He was pardoned later in 1924 by Gov. Pinchot.

In the ballot box stealing case, O'Malley and George DeBasi were each sentenced to serve two years in jail, and Tom Zieserl, convicted with them, was given one year. It was charged they attempted to prevent the election board from holding the election, threatened and interfered with the election officers, and seized the ballot box, ballots, books and papers, and removed them from the polls.

Tipsy, Romantic Couple Balked In Wedding

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—Marriage licenses will not be issued at the Lawrence County courthouse to persons who are intoxicated. This was shown when a Cleveland, O., couple applied for a license. Both appeared unsteady on their feet and had the odor of liquor on their breath. After a few questions, Prothonotary R. M. Campbell decided that they were in no condition to be married and told them so.

They tried to convince the prothonotary that they knew what they were doing, but Campbell told them to go back to Ohio, where they must wait five days after giving notice of their intention to get a license. They were about 35 years of age.

NAVY LEAGUERS BACK GARDINER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—A vigorous fight over President Hoover's naval policy was promised today when the executive committee of the Navy League of the United States, by a vote of seven to one, decided to stand squarely behind their president. William Howard Gardiner, who said Mr. Hoover was "abysmally ignorant" of current navy affairs.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, assistant secretary of navy during the Wilson administration, cast the single dissenting vote, asserting that the nature of Gardiner's language in his attack on Mr. Hoover "will not serve the best interests of the Navy or the Navy League."

The league took a healthy whack at the President's special committee appointed to disprove the accuracy of Gardiner's pamphlet when it said it welcomed an impartial and comprehensive investigation, "which will throw much needed light in the present conduct of American naval policy."

had been punctured with an ice pick and that its ignition wires had been torn out.

The polling place is at Middle and Bridge streets, just across the street from the Volpe Republican campaign headquarters.

All of the depredations occurred in the Fourth District, in which lies the home of John Volpe, Republican boss of the borough.

Mrs. Milasinovich told police Volpe supporters came to her husband and her father-in-law after the primary election and told them if they did not "change your politics something will happen."

While the specially appointed election board continue with their duties of counting the ballots in the Fourth District of Wilmerding, five deputy sheriffs and watchers of the Independent Party, keep close guard to prevent any interference. The regular board of the district, a Volpe stronghold, was ousted last week by a court order.

Fearing an attempt may be made to halt the work of the board or to seize the ballot box, the deputies will remain on guard until the work of the board has been finished. Then the box will be taken under guard to the sheriff's office.

HOOVER AIDING STATE RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Experts in softening winter's pinch are being furnished directly to states with serious employment problems by an affiliate of President Hoover's relief organization.

This became known shortly after the chief executive estimated 100,000 men will be working by January 1 on public building program, which now employes 50,000.

Frank Bane, executive secretary of the National Association of Welfare Officials, which is collaborating with the President's organization, said the association is expanding its staff to render intensive service to a number of states. Bane added:

"Representatives of the association are going into states and directly assisting state authorities, not only in organizing, but in operating statewide relief programs."

W. A. Starrett, chairman of the Construction Committee of the President's organization, meanwhile announced he will tour the country for 30 days, preaching employment rotation to the building trades.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—William L. Edison, son of the late Thomas A. Edison declined to make any announcements in connection with the proposed court action. An inventor in his own right, and reputedly wealthy, Edison asserted in announcing his proposed contest of the will that "undue influence" had been brought to bear on his father, allegedly by Mrs. Mina Edison and Charles Edison.

Nudist Colony's Invasion Of Artists' Town Fought

CARMEL, Cal., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Carmel, which claims to be the literary and artistic capital of California, is debating whether it shall admit a colony of nudists.

International Branch No. 12 of the Society of the Sun, which has its headquarters near Carmel, wants to move into this picturesque village. In a letter to the City Council last night, Mme. Mathilde Baumgartner, head of the branch, which consists of 12 members, asked whether the nudists may move in.

Herbert Herron, Carmel's postmaster, said he saw no objection to the plan, as did several other councilmen, but City Attorney Argyle Campbell, to whom the matter was referred for a ruling, said he would oppose the request. He said:

"Carmel would become the laughing stock of the nation."

But Herron countered:

"They're doing it in Europe."

Madam Baumgartner's letter said the society insisted on three requisites: love of the sun, scorn for lustful thoughts and a firm belief that it is sacrilege to clothe the human body.

She said the cult's present quarters were inadequate in that there was no protection from peeping "Toms." If the cult moves to Carmel, it would be located in a wooded section, "surrounded by an eight-foot wall," the letter explained.

JUDGE FRANK P. PATTERSON GIVING OATH TO 60 WHO AT 1 O'CLOCK TODAY STARTED OFFICIAL ELECTION COUNT

'Kick Drys Off Property,' U. S. Judge's Policy

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Federal Judge William Clark, who a few months ago ruled the Eighteenth Amendment was unconstitutional has now announced from the bench that, if any prohibition agents went on his property he would "kick them off so fast you couldn't see them for dust."

William Harris, counsel for George Paglie, appeared before Judge Clark yesterday to have a search warrant quashed. Paglie's property adjoins a place which was raided 10 days ago by prohibition agents. Harris said the perty was illegal, but he was afraid warrant to search Paglie's prop- to tackle the agents. Judge Clark said:

"I know what I'd do if prohibition agents came on my property. I'd kick them off so fast you couldn't see them for dust. And if I needed any help, I'd call in the chief of police of Princeton, where I live, and he would help me kick them off."

After examining the warrant, Judge Clark criticized it as being "as carelessly drawn as are many search warrants presented by the prohibition department."

He told Harris to have his client in court tomorrow to thresh the whole matter out, and added:

"Go to the police and have the agents kicked off."

FLYING BRITISH DEBUTANTE BEATS RECORD TO CAPE TOWN

PEGGY SALAMAN PICKS UP TWO LION CUBS

Forced Landing Failed to Daunt Girl, but She Now Wants to Dance, Not Soar

International News Service.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Nov. 5.—Peggy Salaman, 19-year-old London debutante, whose mother was an American, landed her little monoplane here at 7:35 a. m. today, establishing a new England-Cape Town flying record of 5 days 7½ hours.

The previous record of 6¾ days was held by Capt. Glen Kidston, English flier.

Miss Salaman, accompanied by an assistant pilot, Donald Store, hopped off from Lympne, England, at 11 p. m. Friday. She reached Kimberley last night and took off from there at 1:15 a. m. on the last leg of the record-breaking flight.

7,900 MILES

The distance covered in the flight was approximatly 7,900 miles. Miss Salaman's arrival surprised Cape Town, and only a small crowd was at the airport to greet her. Her first thought was for her two lion cubs, which she acquired Tuesday night when she was forced down in the forest in northern Rhodesia. She has named the cubs "June" and "Juka."

Someone offered her a cigaret, but she said she didn't smoke. She added:

"It was a wonderful experience. I was tired of society life in London, and thought this trip would be exciting, which it was.

"I got all I was looking for and more, too, especially when we had to land in the bush, and almost had a wreck in getting the plane in the air again the next day.

"I was confident all along we would break the record, but I think now I've had enough flying for a little while, and don't know whether I want to fly back to England."

She then told of being forced down in Rhodesia, of the damage to the plane during the landing and taking off.

PRAISES GIRL

Miss Salaman's co-pilot, Store, also shared in the welcome and congratulations, but wanted most of the credit to go to his smiling girl companion. He said:

"Peggy was magnificent. It was not easy going part of the time, but she alternated with me at the controls and did more than her share in making the flight a success."

After a few minutes at the airport, the girl flier went to a hotel where she ate a hearty breakfast before retiring. She said:

"It's been a marvelous adventure, but now for a hot bath, with plenty of soap and bath salts, and after that I'll be ready for dancing, riding or anything else Cape Town has to offer.

"I'm a bit anxious about clothes, though, as I only brought one dance frock. It will have to do until I can replenish my wardrobe.

"I feel perfectly fit, with no bad effects from the flight, and I think I would like to do it again, as perhaps we could lower the record still further."

Bennett, Swanson Wedding 'Race' Stirs Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—Will Constance Bennett or Gloria Swanson be Hollywood's most beautiful bride-of-the-month in November, or will they share honors?

Hollywood today believed that both screen actresses would be brides before Thanksgiving Day, with Miss Bennett marrying Marquis Henri De La Falaise, and Miss Swanson marrying Michael Farmer, who accompanied her here from Europe.

Friends of Miss Bennett, "the best dressed woman on the screen," revealed today her sister, Joan, also a film actress, was making preparations to leave New York soon "to attend a wedding in Hollywood Sunday, November 22."

Miss Bennett denied a report she would "elope to Arizona in an airplane with the marquis December 2." She said:

"When there is anything to announce about a wedding, I will announce it, but not until then. I don't believe in elopements."

The marquis still is the husband of Gloria Swanson, whose final divorce decree from him cannot be granted in Los Angeles courts until Saturday, November 7. Miss Swanson has not indicated she would make a court appearance that day to obtain the decree.

UHLAN IN AFRICA STILL FIGHTS WORLD WAR

Never Told to Stop, German Continues to Stir Tribal Strife Against French

RIO DE ORO, Spanish Africa, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Orders are orders to a proud officer of the once splendid Uhlan Guard of the German Empire, so Lieut. Erich von Satzen, down in the desolate wastes of France's African frontier, is still carrying on his share of the World War, which ended 13 years ago.

No order to cease hostilities ever has reached him and now the man who once was an officer of German cavalry has gone native, married the daughter of a tribal chieftain and as El Hadi Aleman is a desert fighter with the title of caid in the "Blue" Tribe.

He told the second while man he had seen in 15 years:

STILL OBEYING ORDERS

"Tell the people back home that in the South you found Erich von Satzen, of the 2nd Uhlan Regiment, sent here by the imperial government in 1916 and forgotten by the new government of Germany. Tell them he is still obeying his orders, still doing his duty, still fighting against the French."

In October, 1916, a secret order sent Von Satzen from his Uhlan regiment aboard a submarine on a mission to rouse the desert tribes against the French as the English colonel, Lawrence, was rousing the Arabs against the Turks.

TRAINS DESERT RIDERS

Half guest, half hostage, Von Satzen trained the desert riders and led them as they swept down on the lonely garrisons of the French Legion. In 1920 a German ex-officer was captured by Von Satzen's men in an attack on the Legion.

Standing in the desert the officer told Lieut. von Satzen that the war was over, but the latter disagreed. He had been ordered, he said, to fight the French. So his war goes on.

GRAPEMEN DROP HOME DELIVERY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Home distribution of its wine concentrates will be discontinued by Fruit Industries, Ltd.

Donald Conn, managing director, said today that in the future concentrates will be sold only in stores. Previously agents had sold the products directly to the homes and had given aid in bottling the grape juice fermented into wine.

This action was taken, Conn said, partly as a result of the recent Kansas City court decision in the Ukiah Grape Products Company case and partly to avert further criticism of the Farm Board, which has loaned $3,500,000 to Fruit Industries, of which Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, is counsel.

Vine-Glo concentrates, which will be discontinued and substituted by three other brands, in the future may be bought in stores in gallon lots and then must be prepared by the consumer himself.

Thirst-Tortured Men Made Solemn Agreement

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—A solemn compact, sealed between two thirst-tortured men in a 17-foot boat on the open Atlantic, was in force today.

The task of carrying out its terms rested upon the emaciated shoulders of Dave Warshauer, for it came into effect when his brother-in-law and companion during nine days of hardship, died yesterday from the ordeal.

While they faced death with little hope for rescue, Warshauer, who is the father of one son, and Irving Tuchyner, who left two small boys, agreed that if one of them was saved he would care for both families. Their wives are sisters.

Tuchyner was unconscious when the men were picked up by the Coast Guard cutter Cuyahoga Tuesday. He died of damp gangrene, exposure and shock after recovering consciousness long enough to recognize his wife and children.

Warshauer is in a serious condition with symptoms of the gangrene which results from long exposure to salt water, but physicians believe he will recover.

The two men were swept to sea October 25 when they attempted to run their outboard motorboat from Rockaway Beach to Sheepshead Bay. Their fuel gave out in the face of an ebb-tide and a stiff off-shore wind. The Cuyahoga picked them up 40 miles south of Montauk Point, at the eastern end of Long Island.

The ship leaves Bettis airport at 3:05 p. m. daily, arriving at Newark airport at 6:25. Dinner is served aloft, the commuter arriving downtown in New York about 7 p. m. in time to dress for the theater.

The "Pittsburgher" train leaving Pennsylvania Station at 11:50 p. m. brings the traveler back at night, arriving here at 9 a. m.

BRITTON JURY WAITS CHARGE OF JUDGE

Biblical Quotations Mark Arguments of Both Sides; Harding Friend Scores Nan

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Only the charge of Judge John M. Killits intervened today before a Federal Court jury began consideration of Nan Britton's $50,000 libel suit against C. C. Klunk, Marion hotel operator. Closing arguments were completed yesterday.

The suit was delayed a few hours today by the death of the mother of one of the jurors.

Miss Britton who, in her late book, "The President's Daughter," claimed the late President Harding was the father of her 12-year-old daughter, based her suit on charges that Klunk had defamed her character in circulating "The Answer to the President's Daughter."

Biblical quotations marked both sides of the final arguments, William A. Marsteller, counsel for Miss Britton, said that as the Bible was written to point out right from wrong, so was Miss Britton's book. "The President's Daughter" was written, he asserted, to show the need for a law to give a child the same claim on its father as its mother.

Attorneys for Klunk countered with the contention that the charges made against Miss Britton in "The Answer to the President's Daughter" were true.

Grant Mouser, of Marion, a friend of President Harding, told the jurors he had known Miss Britton as a child and that "she had a wild imagination in her adolescence." Of her book, Mouser asserted:

"This salacious, lascivious and poisonous book could not be perpetrated in any other country but the United States. It is the picture of a woman demented, obsessed, bound to have money and to get it at any price."

Reporters were admitted to the courtroom yesterday after having been barred during much of the testimony and cross-examination of Miss Britton.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative, is secretary of state for India, and Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of another section of the disrupted Liberal party, is home secretary.

BARR BACKERS FIGHT 'STEAL' ATTEMPT

JUDGE CALLED

Calling Judge Frank Patterson from a banquet of the Knute Rockne Memorial Association committee at midnight, Commissioner McGovern and other Independents took him to the sheriff's office.

There Patterson ordered Assistant Chief Deputy C. C. Mogar to furnish the deputies for 16 trucks which the Independents supplied.

James F. Routley, Assistant Chief Clerk in the County Commissioners' office, was asked this morning why only one truck was collecting the boxes when, during the primary election, scores of machines were ordered out to seize boxes impounded on an order requested by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, defeated for renomination.

ROUTLEY EXPLAINS

Routley said that when informed of the impounding order he had placed five cars at work immediately and arranged to have all of the county-owned trucks start work at 5 p. m.

Before that time, however, he said, he was informed by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Sober that most of the boxes could not be obtained before morning and therefore had ordered his men not to start collection until then.

Two Justices of the Peace—Arthur W. Headley of the Twenty-fifth Ward, and John Stewart of Avalon, the latter defeated for re-election—were taken into custody by deputies this morning when they refused to surrender their boxes.

Mogar said he would take them before Judge Marshall charged with contempt of court. He changed his mind and released them later on advice of the Sheriff's solicitor, Robert Averbach.

Averbach said Headley had told him he was too ill to get out of bed to go to his office with the deputies and that Stewart had misunderstood them.

The boxes were turned over to the deputies, Averbach said, and that action, in his opinion, cleared both men of possible contempt action.

DENIES CONTEMPT

Squire Headley denied he had refused to get out of bed to produce ballot boxes, and insisted that he could not be considered guilty of contempt of court for refusing to obey a command issued by an unknown person over a telephone. He said:

"I never refused to give them the boxes. A man who said he was a Deputy Sheriff called me one the phone at 12:30 a. m. I told him I would give him the keys to my office so he could get the boxes, but he never came. At 7:15 o'clock this morning they did arrive, but I immediately went with them to the office and turned over the boxes. They took me to the Sheriff's Office, and I was released as soon as I explained my position."

INDEPENDENTS IN CONTROL

The election of Barr places the Independent forces headed by McGovern in control of the Commissioners' office, a power held by the Republican organization for many years.

Mechanic Exonerated On Voting Charge

H. Leon Bosley, 21, of Baltimore, a mechanic employed by the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, arrested Tuesday, accused of showing a voter how to split his ticket, while working as a voting machine repairman, was discharged late yesterday in Common Pleas Court by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

No evidence was offered to sustain the charge. Bosley was arrested at the polls of the Ninth District of the Sixth Ward and released under $300 bail. After an informal conference with attorneys, Judge Marshall ordered his discharge.

CHIEF RIEDER HELD IN BAIL

Chief of Police Edward Rieder, of McKees Rocks, charged with violation of election laws in a complaint made by Frank Demel, overseer in the Second District of the First Ward, McKees Rocks, was held for court under bail of $1,000 by Justice of the Peace William A. Thompson, of Bellevue, last night.

Demel charged that after he denied a ballot to a man he knew not to be legally entitled to it, Tuesday, Rieder entered the polling place and ordered him out. Under the law, police are not allowed in polling places except to cast their ballots or to quell disturbances.

PRINGLE GIRL'S PAST ARGUED IN TRIAL

Pantages Defense Insists On Detailing Accuser's Record; Judge Favors Step

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Whether attorneys for Alexander Pantages may search minutely into the past of Eunice Pringle at the theater magnate's trial on a charge of attacking her became the subject of intense argument, with the jury excluded, shortly before adjournment of court yesterday.

Prosecution and defense attorneys were told by Superior Judge Clair Tappaan, after Miss Pringle's testimony had been interrupted by the arguments, to appear at the opening of court today with any further authorities they cared to cite.

FAVORS TESTIMONY

His instruction came shortly after he had declared from the bench:

"I believe the jury is entitled to consider the character of the witness, to decide as to the testimony of the prosecutrix regarding the acts alleged."

The Judge said, however, his opinion was not final.

The arguments began when the defense, midway in the cross examination of the 19-year-old girl, began pointed queries as to her conduct before the time of the asserted attack, August 9, 1929.

WEEPS IN COURT

The prosecution interrupted with a strenuous effort to exclude from the testimony any reference to Miss Pringle's past life, — the point on which Pantages was granted a second trial by the Supreme Court after his conviction in October, 1929. The high court ruled the first trial Judge erred in excluding testimony as to her reputation.

Miss Pringle, who wept several times while telling the jury Pantages attacked her in his offices when she applied to him for a vaudeville contract, grew more and more agitated as the arguments of attorneys proceeded.

In his cross examination and in his argument Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler hinted at parties that might have followed rehearsals of Miss Pringle's proposed vaudeville act.

BEATEN LAWYER TO DEFY MOB

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Maryland headquarters of the International Labor Defense League moved to seek the arrest of leaders of a Worcester County mob which yesterday attacked its attorney, Bernard Ades, and two companions at Snow Hill.

Louis Berger, secretary of the organization, declared that Ades, who left Snow Hill under police guard after he had been beaten by the mob, promising never to return, would be present in the Snow Hill Court tomorrow for the defense of Yuel Lee, alias Orphan Jones, confessed Negro slayer of a farm family.

Berger prepared a second petition for presentation to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, asking protection for Ades. The executive yesterday declined to order out troops at Berger's request after he had been informed by Worcester County officials all participants in the case would be protected.

AID FOR MINERS HELD URGENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Aid for the adult unemployed in soft coal mining communities of West Virginia, Kentucky and parts of Tennessee, Illinois and Pennsylvania was said today by Miss Margaret E. Jones, secretary of the Washington Friends Society, to be inevitable.

From Morgantown, W. Va., where she went to deliver clothing for children, Miss Jones returned to describe conditions of acute distress, and to predict that relief must also be made available to the parents of the boys and girls who are now being cared for by the American Friends Service Committee. She said:

"In the vicinity of Morgantown there are nine mining camps in which fathers are permanently out of work, and their families are destitute. I saw children barefoot on a cold day and without underclothing."

Commissioner-Elect Dies in Lycoming

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Dr. E. B. Bardo, elected to the Board of Commissioners of Lycoming County, by the highest vote given any of the Commissioner candidates, died suddenly last night at Williamsport Hospital. Dr. Bardo, who was rounding out a four-year term as sheriff of Lycoming County, sustained an injury to his spine some weeks ago while serving a warrant on a refractory prisoner, and had since been a patient at the hospital, but was reported much improved. His death was caused by a heart attack.

Beamish Recovers, Avoids Operation

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, has left St. Mary's Hospital where he had been under observation for the past week for a stomach ailment, and returned to Harrisburg. Beamish "responded to treatment," physicians said, and an operation was found unnecessary.

INDIAN SLAYER IN TRANCE

By S. BRITTEN RUNYON
International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 5.—Golney Seymour, 21-year-old Apache Indian, charged by the government with killing Henrietta Schmerler, 24, Columbia University co-ed, today went into a strange trance in his cell in the Pima County Jail.

The trance, a custom of the Apaches, is used by them to "commune with the spirits." Since white men gained control of Arizona the Indians have used the trance method to defeat questioners prying into the soul of the Red man.

White men were trying to unravel the mystery that surrounded motives for the killing of Miss Schmerler. Seymour has confessed he attacked her, and killed her with a knife and stones when she repulsed him while they were en route to a dance on the Fort Apache Indian reservation last July.

Police Must Feed Prisoners, Jail Now Empty

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The jail is empty and everyone is happy—especially the chief of police. After paying out of his own pocket, without hope of recompense, the food bill of those arrested by his subordinates, he posted a notice on the jail door. It read:

Prisoners locked up in this jail must be fed at the expense of the officer making the arrest."

He signed it, and now the jail is empty. One high in authority said there was no provision in the budget for feeding municipal prisoners.

TROOPS GUARD DREISER MINE PROBERS

Soldiers Ordered Out as Writers Invade Kentucky Coal Field 'Terror Zone'

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—A detachment of state troops was ordered to Harlan County today while a committee of writers led by Theodore Dreiser, novelist, assembled at Pineville to organize before invading the coal fields to investigate what Dreiser calls a "reign of terror." Pineville is in Bell County, adjoining Harlan.

Gov. Flem D. Sampson ordered out the National Guardsmen last night, saying he was doing so "in order that there may be no doubt as to the safety of these visitors." Dreiser had telegraphed the Governor saying he would hold the Chief Executive responsible for any harm that might come to members of his committee.

TROOPS TO GUARD WRITERS

The troops, the Governor said, would maintain the "status quo" while the writers are investigating reports of terrorism and suppression of free speech. Dreiser's committee plans to enter Harlan County tomorrow and conduct a meeting of the National Miners' Union to test the right of free speech.

This is the second time this year troops have been sent into the Harlan mine area. Three months ago, after several men had been shot to death in labor disorders there, approximately 400 National Guardsmen patrolled the area for several weeks before being withdrawn.

One of the members of Dreiser's committee, Bruce Crawford, editor of a Norton (Va.) weekly, was shot in the foot from ambush the last time he was in Harlan. Crawford, who was attending arraignment of miners accused of the labor trouble killings, was advised by county officers not to travel through the county alone.

STATE PLANS INQUIRY

The Governor did not say how many troops were in the detachment ordered to Harlan today. He said he would appoint two Kentuckians to conduct a separate investigation of the situation there and report to him. This, he said, was in response to many telegrams and letters he had received requesting such an investigation.

More than 50 indictments charging murder have been returned as a result of the Harlan killings, and the accused are awaiting trial in other counties, following changes of venue.

HONOR RODGERS FOR U. S. FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Pilots who guide aerial liners across the continent on a 36-hour schedule mused today on the march of progress and the memory of Calbraith P. Rodgers.

Just 20 years ago today he astounded the country by completing the first trans-continental flight. His time from Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, to Pasadena, Cal., was 49 days, and everybody declared it was grand.

Rodgers, for whom the United States airport near Aspinwall was named, was a Pittsburgher residing in the Bellefield section. He was killed when his plane dived into the ocean at Long Beach, Cal., about a year after the flight.

Several years later a plaque was dedicated to Rodgers' memory at Carnegie Institute, and the plane he used on his epochal flight is now in the first suite.

His mother now resides in Atlantic City.

'LOVE KILLING' JURY SOUGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—A woman of 37 and her blond "gigolo" of 22 awaited today the completion of the jury that will decide their fate. They are charged with the murder of her husband in a love triangle which has evoked memories of the famous Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray case.

The woman is Mrs. Amy Conlin, and her erstwhile sweetheart is James Pembrock De Pew, an ex-convict. The state charges that to obtain funds to enable Mrs. Conlin to get a Reno divorce they conspired to rob John Conlin, her husband, and that while De Pew was committing the robbery last April Conlin was shot in the spine. He died on July 3 after lying paralyzed in a hospital for 73 days.

The trial began yesterday in Queens County Court, the setting of the Snyder-Gray trial. Mrs. Conlin was expected to take the stand in an effort to avert the penalty that was Ruth Snyder's.

Quake Cracks Hill While Mexicans Flee

OAXACA CITY, Mex., Nov. 5.—(AP)—News has reached here that a large hill known as "El Sombrerazo" in the vicinity of San Juan, cracked wide open in the fierce shaking of last Sunday's earthquake at that point.

It is feared the hill may disappear and all the residents of a nearby ranch have fled in terror. Numerous shocks here since Sunday have kept the populace in constant alarm.

Surgeon Stricken, Son Races Death

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—(INS.)—A dramatic race with death was under way this afternoon as Henry Spangler, a student in the School of Business Administration at Harvard University, rushed to the bedside of his father, Dr. H. A. Spangler, 63, noted Carlisle surgeon, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy while performing an operation here last night.

2 WOMEN FINED IN HOTEL ROW

A pair of broken eye-glasses were exhibited in Central Police Court today by Kenneth Childs, assistant manager of the William Penn Hotel, as evidence of a blow alleged to have been struck by Mrs. Helen Flynn, 26, of 200 East North avenue.

Mrs. Flynn and Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, 26, staying at the Fort Pitt Hotel, were arrested, detectives testified, after they had been drinking and causing a disturbance in the William Penn. They were fined $10 each on charges of disorderly conduct.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

ARSENAL HEAD VISITS CITY

E. L. Benedict, district chief of chemical warfare service of the Pittsburgh district, comprising 18 states east of the Mississippi and south of the New York and Northern New Jersey line, was host today to Col. C. E. Brigham, commanding officer of the Edgewood Arsenal.

In connection with his visit, Col. Brigham inspected the Mine Safety Appliance Company, the Federal Laboratory and the Mellon Institute. Benedict, John E. McKirdy, assistant district chief, and Lieut. Joseph F. Battley accompanied Col. Brigham.

Col. Brigham was the honor guest at a luncheon in the Duquesne Club yesterday. Others at the luncheon included former Gov. John S. Fisher, Chancellor John G. Bowman, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. William O'Neill Sherman, J. E. Nelson and Benedict.

CITY TO GRANT 3 HEARINGS

Three requests for hearings will be granted by city Council, it was decided yesterday, when the Public Safety Committee took action on three communications. The hearings will probably be held next Wednesday.

A hearing is asked by the Pittsburgh Booksellers' Association to register a complaint against corner vendors selling magazines without licenses. The association charges that this is an "unfair" advantage over the members of the organization, who are forced to maintain places of business for this purpose.

The Better Traffic Committee asks a hearing on the new codified traffic ordinance, while the Greater Pittsburgh Garage Men's Association seeks councilmanic action on proposed legislation in connection with garage operation activities.

City Light Contract Drafting Approved

Council's Committee on Public Works yesterday approved the drafting of a contract ordinance providing for furnishing of electric light current for public purposes for the next five years. At the same time provision was made to set aside $850,000 to pay for the current during 1932. This matter will be taken up when the Budget Committee begins sessions sometime this month.

The current will be used to light boulevards, streets, highways, bridges, alleys, parks and buildings. The present contract, signed in 1926 for a five-year term, is held by the Duquesne Light Company and expires December 31, 1931.

3 Carriers Oppose New Freight Permit

John Benkart & Sons Company, truckers, met with considerable opposition yesterday when their application for a certificate to operate a freight service between Pittsburgh and Washington, Pa., was heard by Commissioner Samuel Walker of the Public Service Commission.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Lightning Express Company opposed the application on the ground that the present service is adequate and that the territory is a highly competitive one. A decision will be rendered later.

Cruelty, Indignities Charged in Divorce

Ethel McMinn, 416 North Sheridan avenue, asked a divorce from Earl McMinn, 6326 Marchand street, in Common Pleas Court, alleging cruelty and indignities. They were married December 1, 1922, and parted April 28, 1930.

ZAMORA SURE OF PRESIDENCY

MADRID, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—Nicete Alcala Zamora, who recently resigned as provisional chief executive of Spain, yesterday accepted nomination as lone candidate for president in the coming elections.

Zamora is certain to be elected when the new federal constitution is completed, as he is the choice of the principal political parties.

The Spanish government will consult with the League of Nations in the future before declaring war on any other nation, according to a provision written into the new republican constitution by the cortes.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Shakespeare, of all persons, is creeping into the loudspeakers. No fanfare to wealth's propaganda, not even an extra effort to capture the ears of school children.

Still, there is the record for all to gaze at, and broadcasters' consciences are clear. They will be clearer when foremost Shakespearian actors are herded before the microphones. Foremost Shakesperian actors, heretofore have been confined on the radio to two brief recitals—John Barrymore speaking Hamlet's Soliloquy, Forbes-Robertson, Sir Johnston Forbest-Robertson, if you're a stickler for names, airing Hamlet's address to the players.

Radio caliphs had difficulty leading Forbes-Robertson to radio. The actor is now more than 80 years old, does not like to leave his fireside. He finally consented to speak a piece to America upon the occasion of a Shakespeare festival. It proved an ordeal. The beautiful speaking voice, one of the most beautiful in all the world, began out of it rolled the sonorous sentences a superb reading of one of the great speeches of dramatic literature.

The actor eventually reached the close. But his voice went on. "Thank goodness that's over," he sighed. He had not realized the microphone was still open. Good human sigh! People everywhere heard it. Listening, they chuckled and sympathized.

"Thank God, that's over" is the most heartfelt prayer of those who, unaccustomed to radio, are occasionally called upon to make a speech on the microphone. Seldom is it expressed by those used to public appearances. Actors today look upon the radio studio as the promised land, regard it as the place where they can recover lost stage prestige, pray that they will be called, but there is not much chance for them, for radio drama forms but a minute portion of air entertainment. The few that are called receive meager fees.

The meager fees in most cases come out of the broadcasters' own ills. Commercial sponsors fight shy of radio drama, believe the parlors are not interested in it. They are right in their belief. The parlors are not interested in radio drama which follows the familiar form of stage drama.

Radio men will have to evolve, until home television arrives, a new technique of reaching the armchairs without the aid of music. Best technique so far displayed is that of the courtroom cross-examination.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

WE NOW PRESENT

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

WHEN AMERICAN engineers discover what makes radio music come out of stovepipes, telephones and steel girders 30 floors above the street, they might take a trip to Yalla, India, where exists the greatest phenomenon of all. . . . At one point on the peninsula there is a spot 10 feet square, in which reception of American signals is perfect . . . WBBM, KDKA, WOR, WTIC are received regularly . . . Strangely enough, when the radio set is moved outside this area of 10 square feet, English and European broadcasting stations cut in . . . This amazing tale was told us by Lieut. John Richards, of a large American oil company, who stopped in Pittsburgh on his way to Chicago, the other day, long enough to inspect KDKA . . . Lieut. Richards has been stationed in India for 11 years . . . Several theories might be advanced for the strange phenomenon . . . one theory is that the radio waves come through the earth at this particular point; another is that the radio waves go around the earth, concentrating at this point; and still another theory is that the mineral content of the earth at this spot attracts the radio waves much as ore in the Ligonier Mountains for a long time absorbed signals of Pittsburgh stations.

Question a Day:

What has become of Lucille Wall, the "Love Story Girl"?—A. N., City.

Answer—Lucille was a bit unethical in accepting a dramatic part in "The Adventures of Barbara Wayne," a WJZ-WGAR-WJR-WLW feature every Sunday night at 6:45, which goes on the air a few hours before the Magazine Hour in which she formerly played the role of the "Love Story Girl." The Magazine Hour wanted her services exclusively and released her after they learned that she had accepted a contract for the other program, sponsored by a silk company.

The close association between Charles (Cheerio) Fields and President Hoover began in 1894 at Stanford University, California, when Fields played in the backfield of a championship football team managed by Hoover, then an engineering student. . . .

Truth is stranger than fiction. . . . Has any author ever coined a name with more exotic charm than Aga Khan (WCAE at 4:15 this afternoon) or Mahatma Gandhi?

John T. Royal, program manager of NBC, answers 350 telephone calls a day and keeps 70 appointments . . . yet he closes his desk at noon Saturday and goes to the football game . . . the Royal road to fame . . .

The Lord Mayor of London's trip to the banquet hall with trumpets blaring and other fanfare of this festive spectacle, is to be described for NBC-KDKA listeners next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. . . .

Ray Perkins writes his programs on a desk originally used by Theodore Roosevelt. . . .

Ted Jewett is hobbling about at the home of his parents at Hazlett, N. H., after being released a week ago from the Flushing, L. I., hospital, where he was under treatment for a broken leg sustained July 29, when he was struck by a taxicab while describing the departure of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh for the Orient. . . .

For the first time in history a Eugene O'Neill production is to be radioed tomorrow night at 8:30 when the March of Time News Drama presents a scene from "Mourning Becomes Electra" over CBS-WJAS . . . Little Jack Little does his first Columbia program Monday night as guest artist with Guy Lombardo . . .

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Walter Damrosch, Mary Pickford, Geraldine Farrar, John Charles Thomas are to participate in this Sunday night's Unemployment program, KDKA-WCAE-WJAS at 10:45 . . .

An attempt to broadcast the Pitt-Tech game this Saturday has fizzled . . .

It costs $18,000 to put either the Philadelphia Symphony or Boston Symphony on the network . . . it would cost much less to have the Pittsburgh Symphony on the air an hour each Sunday . . . we have plenty of first-class firms here that might sponsor such a broadcast . . .

After watching Burt McMurtrie assist a few fellow writers in the preparation of a WOR script, a visitor remarked recently that the call letter of the station would be more descriptive if a "K" were added . . .

Grace G., Swissvale—Leonard Joy is a graduate of Dartmouth . . . B. A. Rolfe played 468 broadcasts without a break . . . sorry, the Notre Dame-Penn game is not on the schedule this Saturday . . . it should be . . .

Senator James J. Davis is to speak in the American School of the Air series over CBS-WJAS Friday, November 13, at 2:30 p. m.

The Landt Trio and White (certainly missed on "The 8:15") may be heard on WJZ at 6:30 tonight . . . Sherlock Holmes on WEAF-WGY-WTAM-WTIC at 9:30 as usual.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's inexpensive at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine and gives you a purer better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

2 Packs Cigarets Set County Back $246 in Talk

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Two packages of cigarets, J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert, estimated today, cost the county $246.

He stood with a stop watch in his hand yesterday while the County Board of Commissioners debated the question of whether they should pay 30 cents for the two packages, the cost of which was listed on a bill for meals for a jury.

The debate lasted for 15 minutes. The commissioners decided they could not be expected to furnish smokes for jurors, Jacobs said.

"At the rate you commissioners and the stenographers and other employes are paid, the cigarets cost the county $246. And that doesn't count the cost of heating this room."

PEACE PRAYERS ASKED SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—All churches in America were asked today to observe next Sunday as a "special day of prayer in the interests of economic recovery, reduction of armaments and world peace."

The request from officials of more than 20 national religious bodies was issued by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

It asked all churchmen to "invoke guidance for the nations as they assemble at the world disarmament conference at Geneva next February," and said:

"If the conference fails the realization of our hopes for a righteous and brotherly world will be long deterred."

Disposable Tissues

HANDKERCHIEFS are repulsive enough when used during colds, as every sensitive person knows. But that is not the worst about them.

Germs by millions are concentrated in a single handkerchief! Germs that do not die, but live and grow; for damp handkerchiefs, kept in pockets at body temperature, are ideal for breeding dangerous organisms.

Thus your own handkerchief is a constant source of danger. You must expect repeated self-infection if you use it over and over.

Use Kleenex and destroy

How much more cleanly is Kleenex, a handkerchief to use and destroy! A handkerchief that costs less than laundering alone—that is infinitely softer than cotton or linen. Made of rayon-cellulose, Kleenex is so velvet-soft, so marvelously absorbent, that it never irritates.

Many uses for Kleenex!

Try Kleenex for removing face creams, for polishing spectacles, wiping razor blades, applying medicines and ointments. Mothers find it invaluable in keeping babies fresh and clean. Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store.

A DOCTOR'S Advice for Constipation

"DRINK at least six glasses of water daily — preferably before meals. Eat bulkier foods, such as vegetables, fruits and coarse breads. Use a mild laxative as needed."

That is Dr. Caldwell's advice to people with stubborn bowels. He specialized on the bowels; treated thousands for constipation and its ills. The prescription he used over and over has become the world's most popular laxative! "SyrupPepsin," as it is now called, was tested by over 47 years of practice.

Today you can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore in America. It is always the same; made exactly according to the original prescription, from laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients. Nothing in it to harm even a baby. It does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. But it moves the bowels; it gets rid of all the souring waste which clogs the system and makes you headachy, gassy, bloated, weak, bilious. A doctor should know just what is best for the bowels. Syrup Pepsin is a famous doctor's choice of a safe, pleasant, effective laxative for men, women, older folks, and children.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

The Lady from Newark, New Jersey

THIS, my gentle friends, is a yarn of ancient vintage. So carefully has it been polished and modernized by Mr. Harry Jans, however, that it now becomes something entirely new. Since most stories are subject to the same treatment, I know you will bear with me in the telling. I trust you understand what I'm talking about. I'm doggoned if I do. At any rate—

Into the life of the extremely wealthy Mr. George T. Moneybags came little Nancy Smith. Mr. Moneybags was nearing the age of 70, and he was as lonesome as he was rich. Like some noble boy scout or a theatrical producer, he longed to do some good deed every day. But, until Nancy happened along, I am pained to announce that he failed to find the deed.

Nancy was a product of the thriving town of Newark, N. J. She was young, full of life and delightfully pretty. It must have been fate that made her a stenographer instead of a "Follies" beauty. But it was luck that gave her a position as one of Mr. Moneybags' numerous secretaries.

He called her to him one morning and told her to sit down. She did so in the most approved Newark fashion. He leaned over and patted her dainty hand.

"My child," he murmured, "I don't want you to interrupt me until I have finished. I have a proposition to make to you.

"I am an old man," he went on. "I haven't many more years allotted to me, and I want to enjoy the remainder of them as much as possible. I am going to travel—and I would like you to marry me and travel with me.

"Let me explain more clearly. You have youth, and all that goes with that most priceless of possessions. With you by my side, I will enjoy my travels far more than I would if I were alone. Through I would if I were alone.

"I will give you everything that money can buy. I will give you anything your heart desires. I will make you the happiest of women.

"What do you say?"

As I told you before, Nancy was a sweet and charming girl. Do you think for a moment that she would accept such a proposition? Would any sweet and charming girl fall for such a line? You bet she would. And so did Nancy. . . .

Their first stop was Miami, Fla., where Mr. Moneybags proceeded to keep his word. He rented the finest house in town and told Nancy she could do as she wished. She had cars and servants and jewels and gigolos.

One evening, as they sat on the terrace and listened to the soft music of the hired orchestra, Mr. Moneybags patted Nancy's hand.

"My child," he asserted pleasantly, "you seem to be enjoying yourself immensely. It is foolish of me to ask you—but are you having a good time here?"

The girl's answer was totally unexpected.

"Yes," she replied, "it's very nice here. But I don't like it as well as Newark."

"What's that you say?" he repeated, incredulously. "You don't like this as well as Newark? The house? The grounds? The servants? The cars? The sport? The air? The society? You don't like this as well as Newark?"

"You heard me," chirped Nancy Smith. "I don't like it as well as Newark."

Mr. Moneybags clapped his hands.

"We leave here tomorrow," he announced. "We go to Paris immediately. That is a spot you will surely like better than Newark." . . .

In Paris history repeated itself. The millionaire did everything to make her happy. He took her shopping and permitted her to toss his money away. Never did a woman get more attention or have a better opportunity to live as one can only live in Paris. But when he asked her how she liked it, her answer was the same.

"It's okay," she told him, "but I don't like it as well as Newark."

And, strange as it may seem, that's exactly what continued to happen. In order to satisfy her, Mr. Moneybags took Nancy to the wonder spots of Europe. She gambled in Monte Carlo. She had the finest villa in Nice. Everything in Cannes was hers for the asking. He offered her luxury in Berlin, in Vienna—everywhere. But, no matter where they were, she would always shake her head and hand out the same dogged response.

"It's all right, but I don't like it as well as Newark."

Mr. Moneybags suddenly grew tired of the game. He told her that he had done his best, but that it was no use. He booked passage back to the States.

"You might as well go back to Newark," he said tiredly. "You seem to like that town the best."

They caught the boat. On the second day out Nancy was seized with pneumonia. On the third day out she was dead. It was a very sad ending for one so sweet and charming . . .

Up to the gates of heaven went Nancy. St. Peter sat before them with a large book in his hands and a kindly smile upon his face. Two other girls had arrived before Nancy. St. Peter talked to the first one.

"What is your name," he asked, "and where do you come from?"

"My name is Gertrude Heymano," replied the girl, "and I come from Pittsburgh, Pa."

St. Peter looked in the book and nodded.

"Go right into heaven, my dear," he said. "We welcome you."

The second girl stepped forward.

"My name is Gwendolyn Gulp," she stated, "and I come from Oakland, Cal."

Again St. Peter looked at his book. Once more he shook his head and motioned toward the gates.

"Go right in, child," he exclaimed. "We are happy to have you with us in heaven."

Now it was Nancy Smith's turn. She looked at St. Peter. He smiled at her.

"There is nothing to fear," he assured her. "What is your name and where do you come from?"

Nancy clasped her hands.

"My name is Nancy," she replied sweetly, "and I come from Newark, N. J."

St. Peter peered into his book. He went over her record carefully. Then he looked up.

"You can go in, too," he muttered. "But I don't think you're going to like it!" . . .

Dry Drunk on Raid, Witnesses Testify

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Two witnesses testified in Federal Court that Edward Baker, a dry agent, was intoxicated at the time of the raid on the Baird Hotel in Irving July 6. Baker and two other agents, Fred Wilson and James Mahoney, are being tried before Judge John Knight on assault charges as the result of the alleged beating of Alton Baird, 27, son of the proprietor of the hotel.

Baird and Lloyd S. Dailey, of Gifford, Pa., who was staying at the hotel, testified that Baker was intoxicated when he entered the hotel on a dry raid.

NOTICE To Local Housewives:

Ordinary City Water and Soaps Will Not Clean Dishes Thoroughly . . . Because Water Is Too Hard

For best results in any home washing just add this new water-softening cleanser to soap and water. Takes ¼ the usual amount of soap—saves ½ the time and effort.

WOMEN here are discovering an easy, inexpensive way to avoid the greasy film on dishes and greasy rim in dish pan that follows washing in this hard water. They claim amazingly fine results.

This new discovery is not a soap—but a water-softening cleanser that gives any soap four times its cleansing efficiency by turning "hard" water into "soft".

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a teaspoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the hardness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime. And thus cuts washing time ONE-HALF or more.

Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results. During 1930, women used over 33,000,000 packages of Climalene—for washing, for cleaning and in the dishpan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things, lingerie and delicate fabrics, costly china. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Remember the name — Climalene. Your grocer has it. Sold only in 10c and 25c packages. U-6-RA have a Clear Skin—

rich, red blood cells will help you . . . .

"I WAS determined to have a clear skin."

"Some one told me of S.S.S. . . . now I am so glad the last pimple is gone."

Of course you want a clear skin. Everybody does. It helps you win and hold friends. It makes for greater popularity.

Whatever treatment you may use for your complexion, remember the important fact that skin health depends upon the right number of red-blood-cells.

Skin specialists recognize that thin, weak, impoverished blood will not make for a clear, healthy glow of the skin.

More rich, red-blood-cells will help

A low red-blood-cell count often exhibits itself in one or more of the following symptoms:—paleness, quick fatigue, lack of normal resistance to disease, pimples, boils and general run-down condition.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form * * * it is Mother Nature's formula.

Builds Sturdy Health

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is important to know that the red-blood-cells are the "ships" that sail in the blood stream and carry nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body . . . they build and sustain—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

Whenever bad complexion or blemishes on the skin are due to a low blood count, or to a lagging appetite, the condition can be relieved or benefited by a course of S.S.S. If you are pale, or languid, give S.S.S. a trial. It may help you as it has helped thousands of others. It builds red-blood-cells. It is a splendid tonic.

(Upper) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Lower) Weak red-blood-cells—only 65 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

Two Buds To Bow

After the first of the year the buds will go South or to Europe or some resort nearer home for a brief rest, and more of the social whirl.

Two girls will be presented next week. Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger will give a tea Tuesday afternoon in the Borntraeger home, Bennington avenue, to present her daughter, Rita.

A week from today Betty Higgins will make her bow at a tea her mother, Mrs. Harry B. Higgins, of Woodland road, Sewickley, will give in the Higgins home.

Half the program was devoted to popular miniatures, and half to a delightful concerto of Handel, and all was well received by the audience who have now become regular patrons of these pleasant evenings.

Mr. Lissfelt

How astonishingly well the works of Grieg, Tschaikowsky and Sibelius lend themselves to arrangement for this ensemble, and one would expect them to be best played. It is in the more serious music, however, that the ensemble excels, especially in the Bach Fugue of last night. Of the Handel Concerto special mention may be made of the excellence of the short scherzo movement, and of the continued improvement in attack throughout the ensemble's playing.

CHARMING EVENING PAJAMAS IN NEW COLORFUL DESIGNS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Certain designers are still advocating evening pajamas, with the new models developed in very colorful hues. Perhaps they think that, if nothing else, they will give us something to talk about besides economic ills. Or perhaps they really believe that the evening pajama will still become part of the evening scene when it is set far from the domestic hearth. For surely the grand new models were never meant only to grace the home. Rich metallic cloth with warm Persian colorings, shimmering satins and velvets, silver lame, all these sumptuous fabrics are featured in the new pajama parade and are made into pajamas that at first glance closely resemble a very formal evening frock. And this doesn't sound like pajamas for lounging or for the petit diner taken at home, does it? Well, maybe we'll be seeing more pajamas dining or supping out this year, even if we can't solve the problem why pajamas should take such trouble to disguise themselves to look like honest-to-goodness evening frocks.

WE SHOW TODAY a sketch of Schiaparelli's very newest evening ensemble consisting of silver lame pajamas and a short ruby velvet jacket. The pajamas are exceedingly ample and flaring and terminate in double trains in back, like the fishtail train of pre-war days. The soft sash is tied in a large bow in front. Bodice and pajama yoke fit snugly and outline the figure by means of the use of sloping darts. It has a double-train effect. The trains may be caught up and hooked to each side front beneath the belt, thereby obtaining another pre-war effect, which this time is a side drapery that suggests the dresses of the famous Floradore Sextette.

RUTH JUDD WINS SKIRMISH IN DEATH CASE

'Murder Apartment' Visit By Defense Permitted As Prosecutor Protests

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 5.—Attorneys for Mrs. Ruth Judd, 26, the "blonde tigress," today emerged victorious in a legal skirmish with the prosecution when Superior Judge M. T. Phelps issued an order permitting the defense to inspect the "murder apartment."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Judd, held without bond in the county jail for trial on charges of killing her friends, Agnes Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson, whose bodies she shipped in two trunks and a suitcase to Los Angeles, was near collapse.

QUESTIONING PROTESTED

Defense attorneys heatedly charged that Prosecuting Attorney Lloyd Andrews had violated an agreement and had secretly questioned her. The Prosecutor denied the charge.

Andrews had refused Defense Lawyer Herman Lewkowitz permission to visit the apartment in which Mrs. Judd admitted she committed the crime. Lewkowitz obtained from Judge Phelps a court order restraining Andrews from interference.

Andrews immediately challenged Judge Phelps' authority to issue such an order on the ground the Judge lacked jurisdiction, and a hearing was ordered today in Superior Court on Andrews' motion.

JUDD VICTORY SEEN

That Andrews would be overruled was indicated in the statement by Judge Phelps that "this court has jurisdiction over all prisoners in the jail and over all officers of the court."

Mrs. Judd called for Lewkowitz late yesterday when Andrews and a jail matron entered her cell with two men reported to have been psychiatrists, and refused to talk until Lewkowitz arrived.

Lewkowitz said he also would visit the apartment in which Mrs. Judd resided before she assertedly murdered her friends.

IL DUCE VISITS ST. PETER'S

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini made his second public appearance at St. Peter's this morning.

Dressed in a frock coat he drove to the basilica after acting as witness at the wedding of Maria Ciano, daughter of Count Ciano, minister of communications, to Massimo Magistrati, Italian diplomat.

Il Duce first visited St. Peter's a year and a half ago following the wedding of his daughter, Edda, to Count Galleazzo Ciano, brother of the bride of today's wedding.

His visit today was looked upon as a forerunner of his forthcoming visit to Pope Pius XI and as a further indication of better relations between Italy and the Vatican.

The wedding itself took place at the Church of St. Theresa and the party drove in 12 automobiles to St. Peter's to worship at the tomb of the apostle. With the Premier was his wife, Donna Rachele, who rarely appears in public.

U. S. MISSIONARY SLAIN IN CHINA

NANKING, China, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The Rev. J. W. Vinson, member of the American Presbyterian Mission at Haichow, Kiangsu Province, has been slain by Chinese bandits, United States Consul General Willis R. Peck was advised today.

Vinson was kidnaped last Sunday. His death presumably occurred yesterday. Immediately upon receipt of news Peck asked the Chinese Foreign Office for details.

At the instance of the American government, he had made representations to the Foreign Office following the kidnaping and was assured the Chinese government would do all in its power to obtain the release of Vinson.

The missionary is survived by three young children, all of whom live with relatives in Lexington, Va. His wife died several years ago.

BEST TO TALK ON LOAN PLAN

W. F. Best, president of the United States Building and Loan League, today said there was little possibility that the league's plan for rediscounting building and loan paper through the Federal Reserve System, or some similar national institution, would be adopted by Congress. This was one of the suggestions Best advanced to President Hoover at the White House conference Monday in the belief it would materially aid business.

Best will discuss this and corelated subjects at the eighth annual banquet of the Allegheny County League of Building and Loan Associations tonight in the Hotel William Penn. Best said:

"What the League wants is a system similar to the Federal Reserve System, whereby we could rediscount our paper. As it stands now, the banks have to hold our paper when we borrow money."

Wife Slayer Loses Appeal for Life

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Tilby Smith, convicted with Maude Lowther, a West Virginia hill girl, of murdering his wife to carry on an illicit love affair, has lost his final court fight to escape death in the electric chair. The Ohio Supreme Court, after hearing an appeal on error, declined to review his case.

Bombers' Dynamite Found in Rail Yards

A box of dynamite, believed to be part of that stolen by bombers who dynamited a dwelling of Louis DeCicco, 103 Highland avenue, Stowe Township, last week, was found today in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad yards at McKees Rocks by railroad detectives, who turned it over to County Detective John W. Geisler. Twenty-four sticks were missing.

TERMS—YOUR PRESENT CAR TAKEN IN TRADE

HERE'S WHY:

There is nothing misleading or confusing about this sale. No bonuses or vague promises. Nothing to cover up. Here are the straight facts:

We are concluding our greatest year in the automobile business. We have sold over three times as many cars this year as last year.

The world knows that the current Auburn models are the outstanding automobile values on the market today. These cars were first introduced nine months ago. They startled the industry. Public acceptance was instantaneous. As a result, 20,000 more Auburn cars have been registered in the United States so far this year than for all of last year. Nothing could account for this phenomenal sales record except the abnormal value of the cars themselves.

Comparison proves it. Enthusiastic Auburn owners everywhere verify it. And it is these very same cars, brand new, current models (not obsolete or unsuccessful cars) that we are now offering at unheard-of prices.

Why? Because we think it is good business to sacrifice the remaining few we have in stock to make room for slightly changed models.

It means much more for you to get at bargain prices, these cars, that the records prove are the outstanding success on the market—the greatest values in all automobile history.

J. A. O'MALLEY

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Working Wife Help Hubby Pay Expenses?

We've heard squawks about gents who didn't want the Little Woman to Work—

'N' we've heard 'em about gents who not only permitted Her to work, but got all burnt up if she didn't help pay the landlord and the grocer—

But here's a new one. This time the big boy doesn't care a rap whether the Missis works or not. But he won't let her spend her money.

He actually objects when she wants to move into a better apartment than his salary will let them live in . . . and he insists that she shan't buy any clothes that he can't pay for . . . for he says it will make him look cheap if she does.

As a consequence they're saving plenty but living like a couple of tramps. And is the Missis pleased? Take a peek at her letter and see:

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I guess maybe you'll think this is a silly problem I'm bringing you but I'm right here to tell you it's getting my goat and I'd like to know what to do about it.

"I'm one of these working wives you read about, and I guess I've got a new angle on that problem. You see Jack my husband doesn't object to my working. He says that if I feel I need outside work to keep me happy or have ambitions that I'd like to realize he doesn't think he has any right to object.

HUBBY DISAPPROVES

"But he refuses to allow me to pay any of the household expenses, and doesn't even want me to buy myself any clothes out of the money I make.

He says that when he married me, he undertook to support me, and he intends to do it. Now that sounds silly to me. With our combined salaries, we could afford a much more roomy, airy apartment than we have. We could afford better food to eat. And often I see some pretty dress I would adore having, but that I can't afford if I am to live within his salary alone. And I can't see a reason on earth why we shouldn't have these things since we could afford them, and still lay something by for a rainy day. I think we'd be happier, I know I would. But he won't listen to me when I say so. In fact any such remark on my part always starts an argument.

DEPRIVATIONS

"Do you think he is right? Should I just keep my salary salted away? Or have I a right to pay half of the expenses, as I would like to do.

"We could have more if I did. And we could save quite a lot . . . say a third of each of our salaries . . . instead of using up all of his, and just letting mine lie idle.

"And anyway, it seems to me that if a man and his wife are really partners, they should be partners on the income, as well as on the rest of their life together. I can't see why on earth Jack should want to do all . . . especially since it subjects both of us to unnecessary deprivations and hardships. Is it just silly vanity on his part?

"MAGDA."

How about it, Stranger?

Should the Missis help pay expenses if she works . . .

Or will the big boy be "losing face" if he lets her?

And has he a right to ask her to live in mean, dark rooms, and wear cheap clothes, just so he can pay all the bills without any help?

Is he being silly . . . or is he being Big 'n' Noble?

Fay King Has Fair System for Selecting Best in Beauty Contests

By FAY KING

Only once did I ever serve as a judge at a beauty contest.

I have refused that honor since because I think it is impossible to make a selection that is fair.

A beauty contest should always be of one type, such as the most beautiful blonde, the most beautiful brunette, the most beautiful redhead, selected from a group of the same type.

For otherwise it is as absurd as declaring that an orchid is more beautiful than a rose.

How can one possibly decide fairly between a lucious, languid blonde and sparkling, crispy brunette.

One has only to notice in any gathering of many pretty girls how lovely each type is and how futile to make a decisive comparison between the types.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Blind No-Trump Leads

A blind lead is one made in the dark, because partner has not bid. A direct lead is one made of the suit bid by partner. A substitute lead is an opening lead of your own strong suit, although partner has bid.

To put your partner on more of an even plane with the declarer your leads must be as illuminating as possible. The declarer has no partner to deceive; he may falsecard all he wishes, but you rarely can afford deceiving your partner.

In several ways no-trump leads differ widely from leads against trump makes. In the former case your best chance to defeat a contract is by establishing your longest and strongest suit, using high cards in other suits to gain entry to your hand and to stop the free run of declarer's long suits. Against trump makes you conserve your quick tricks, as you seldom can hope to win any others.

The hand given above illustrates an important fact relative to no-trump leads: When you hold two suits of equal length and approximately equivalent strength, reserve the suit headed by the higher card of entry, and lead the other suit.

Y supported Z's opening bid of 2 no trumps. A led his fourth best spade; B played the J and Z won with his K. Z's clubs were established and could be played later; he felt that he must establish his diamonds, and led that suit. B won the first trick and led back spades; A overtook the Q with his A and led a low spade to clear his suit, depending upon his queen of hearts for entry.

When Z won the spade trick he proceeded to run off three diamonds and four clubs; added to his two spades these tricks gave Z game, after which he took his ace of hearts, making 4-odd, before he let A in. How different it would have been had A opened his right suit—hearts. Z would have won over B's K with his own A, hoping that he might win a later trick with his J. He would have lost a diamond trick to B's ace; the latter would have led back hearts, and A would have won the second trick with his Q. By winning four hearts, one diamond and one spade trick A-B would have defeated the contract two tricks. Even if Z had held off winning his heart trick until the third round, when B gained entry with his top diamond he would have led back a spade to dummy's weakness, defeating the hand one trick worse by winning two spade tricks instead of one.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

When the Hostess Serves At Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When serving guests (when there is no maid) does the hostess serve to the right or left of her guests?

HOSTESS.

1. If the hostess serves as a maid would serve, she would serve at the left. But usually the hostess of a servantless house serves from her place at table, or in co-operation with her husband, at table. For instance, the husband may do the carving and then pass the plate to his wife, so that she may add the vegetables to the plate. This is better than for the hostess to serve the guests as if she were the waitress.

Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to suggest what those in the wedding procession should wear? Or is it an imposition? M.

Not only is it correct, but, in the well-planned wedding, it is taken for granted that the bride outline in detail exactly what she wishes her attendants to wear and the bridegroom should do exactly the same thing for his attendants. Indeed, so important is it that the attire of every member of the wedding party should be correct and most carefully carried out that often the bride and bridegroom have their plans for the attire written out or typewritten. And quite sensible this is, too, and the list should include every item of the ensemble.

Formula for Modifying Milk for Baby's Needs

FEEDING BABY

This is the fifth of a series of eight articles on Infant Feeding by Dr. Royal S. Copeland. In this series Dr. Copeland discusses every phase of this all-important question. The sixth article will appear on Monday.

Dr. Copeland

In this series I have been attempting to explain to the young mother the problems involved in feeding her baby. As I have said on repeated occasions, the baby is much better off if it can be fed from the breast. But, of course, breast feeding is not possible in every instance.

The reason why mother's milk is to be preferred to an artificial food is because it is exactly suited to the needs of the human infant. Mother's milk is more dilute than the milk of the lower animals. It is peculiarly rich in fat, and fat of a remarkably fine globule. This makes it much more readily digested than the fat of cow's milk.

The percentage of sugar in mother's milk is higher, while it contains a smaller proportion of protein. Because of these differences between human milk and cow's milk, it is necessary to make certain modifications in order to fit the cow's milk to the digestive requirements of the infant. If it were attempted to feed the child with the unchanged, unmodified cow's milk there would be digestive disorders at once, loss of weight and general debility.

The first thing we must do to prepare the cow's milk for the baby's needs is to add water, to make it more dilute, more like human milk. But when we do this, we have lessened the proportions of fat and sugar. As a result, the calories, the heat-producing elements, are lacking.

To overcome this, the next step in modifying the milk is to add sugar and a certain amount of fat in the form of cream. Just exactly what these proportions shall be, depends upon the age of the baby. Let me give you an example. For an infant one month old, the feeding for 24 hours would be made up as follows:

Out of a total of 16 ounces there would be 3 ounces of cream from the top of the milk bottle, 2 ounces of skimmed milk and 11 ounces of water. To this mixture would be added a little more than 2 tablespoonfuls of milk sugar. The resulting pint of prepared milk would have practically the same proportions of ingredients as an equal quantity of breast milk.

As the child grows older, the quantity of cream would be increased slightly. At the same time, the skimmed milk content would be increased, and the water materially decreased, until at six months of age not more than 5 ounces of water would be included in the 16-ounce mixture.

The first food given to the new-born babe would consist of 14 ounces of water, to which are added the other ingredients. They would be, one ounce of cream, one ounce of skimmed milk, and a trifle more than two level tablespoonfuls of milk sugar.

When larger quantities of food are required, the same proportions are maintained. It is the practice of some physicians to use barley water or some other cereal water after the baby has reached the age of four months. I shall speak of this again.

In my next article, which will appear Monday, it is my plan to speak somewhat in detail about how these mixtures are made, and the care which must be exercised in their preparation. Some advice will be given, too, regarding the total quantity of formula-milk to give in each 24 hours.

Household Hints

A little vinegar added to the last rinsing water when washing colored clothes will revive their natural shades.

If a towel is folded into a small square and stuffed into the knee of your stockings you will be very glad by the time all the floors are scrubbed and cleaned.

If you are fond of things quite salty or things rather peppery, be very careful in your seasoning and stick to the quantity mentioned in the recipe. Otherwise you may spoil the dish for some one who is not so fond of highly seasoned foods.

Madge Sends Word to the Farmhouse

I had no difficulty in getting the number of Jack's firm in New York, but when I asked to speak to Martha Halkett, I was told that she had not yet come in.

"She had to go to a dentist this morning," the girl volunteered, "and she won't be in for an hour or two."

I did not know whether to feel relief or added perturbation, but optimism conquered as I made the mental estimate that my letter to Miss Halkett could not possibly have reached her the afternoon before, indeed might not yet be on her desk. There was of course but one thing to do, and I tried to make my voice impressive.

"I have a most important message for Miss Halkett," I said. "Will you please see that it is delivered to her as soon as she comes in. Will you be able to see her before she opens her mail?"

"Oh, yes!" the voice replied with cheerful alacrity. "Her desk is right near the switchboard, and I'll see her before she even sits down to her desk. She always comes to me to ask if I have any messages for her before she begins her work."

"Then will you please tell her that Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Richard Graham, of Sag Harbor, wishes her to disregard the letter she sent her this morning, and to call this number." I gave the Ticer number, "as soon as possible."

"To disregard the letter you sent her and call you at this number," the girl repeated the number efficiently. "Yes, I'll tell her that as soon as she comes in."

"Thank you so much," I said, and went back to my couch feeling one anxiety relieved by another. How was I to explain to my family my camping at the Ticer homestead waiting for a telephone call. There was but one thing to do, although I did not particularly care to do it, and that was to take Mrs. Ticer partly into my confidence. So when she returned a few minutes later bearing a basket of eggs, I spoke quickly, directly.

"I'm in somewhat of a dilemma, Mrs. Ticer. Will you help me out?"

"You know it," she said. "What is it you want?"

"This telephone message I sent concerns a member of the family whom I do not wish to have hear it," I began. "Unfortunately the woman I want to reach is not in the office, will not be there for an hour or two. I took the liberty of giving this telephone address instead of my own for her to call when she gets back. I knew you wouldn't mind."

"I should say not," her voice was full of the friendly indignation of a neighbor whose accommodation has been doubted. "And I suppose they will be expecting you back over at the house before the time you'll get that telephone."

"Yes, I wondered perhaps if Mr. Ticer, when he goes over to see my father, could give a note to Mrs. Underwood."

"Ticer!" Her voice was full of the affectionate scorn with which she regards any idea of finesse in connection with her husband. "He'd spill whatever beans there was to spill without knowing it. I'll just take that note over myself, and I'll see your father, too, and nobody'll be the wiser. I promise you. I'll tell Ticer I'm going over on an errand for you, and that I'll speak to your father while I'm over there. He won't like it any too well, for he'd rather go over to the farm and chew the rag with Jim—than eat a meal. But I'll tell him you're so tired with the walk that you'll have to stay here awhile, and he knows that your father wouldn't have you left alone here in the house for anything."

A breath of something cold seemed to touch me at her words. It was partly because of my overwrought mood, and my fatigue, I knew, but suddenly I felt as if there was full reason for all my father's fussiness, and that menace, real and terrible, hung over the farmhouse.

"There, now! you write your note," Mrs. Ticer went on. "You needn't hurry for I can't go over till Ticer comes back, and it takes quite a little time to change a tire, you know."

But slow, easy-going Mr. Ticer must have made a record, and he drove my car back down the road faster than I ever had seen him drive. As he turned into the driveway almost on two wheels, I, watching him from the low, wide farmhouse windows, felt certain that something unusual had happened to excite him.

WANT TO RIP OFF 6 OR 7 POUNDS OF FAT THIS WEEK?

Here's That Much Discussed Andrew's Method of Quick Fat Reduction So Many Overweight People Are Asking About

Recently Brought To This Country From England, It Enables The Average Fat Person To Lose 6 or More Pounds Weekly Without Starvation Or One Extra Step of Exercise

It seems that the British have found a way to rip off excess fat that's the dream of every too-fat person. That is, to rip it off without starving, without tiring exercise.

Under an extraordinarily simple and pleasant regimen discovered there, the average fat person loses as much as six to ten pounds weekly; yet suffers no pangs of hunger, no aching muscles, no weakness or depression. Returning travelers from Europe talked so much about it, that it has now been brought to this country. Anyone can follow it; so if you want to get thin, here's your chance.

Eat, Sleep, Drink And Grow Thin, Doing Only This

All the method involves is a glass of water before breakfast—to clear the intestines and tone the system—and a few minor changes in your diet.

Here is what you do: Tear this article out and save it, so you won't forget.

Before Breakfast: Drink an ordinary tumbler full of cool water to which you've added a teaspoon of effervescent salt. (Get the brand named "Andrews" at any drug store.) This to eliminate the usual curse of fat people: accumulated poisons and bloat. Also to cut the moisture weight of your body—sometimes as much as three pounds in one day.

At Meals: Cut out ONLY fat meats. Eat your usual quantity of lean meats and ADD a double-supply of green vegetables . . . spinach, cabbage, fresh peas, lettuce, etc. Then for dessert, shift from pastry and pies to FRESH FRUIT. The more you eat of these the better. They're super-nourishing vitamin foods.

Drink, too, if you like them, sauerkraut juice, tomato juice or orange juice "cocktails" before lunch and supper. Eat fresh fruit, too, before bed if you like to eat before retiring.

That's all you do. No wonder England and all of Europe is cheering this discovery. You lose weight day by day, week by week . . . usually from six or seven pounds weekly to even as much as ten pounds, and feel amazingly more alert and active while you are. Doctors of world knowledge widely endorse this way. The salt tones and clears the system. The vitamin foods take the place of those that build weight and fat, and thus fat goes like magic.

Embark on the Great Adventure of getting thin today. Ask your doctor about this if you wish to be doubly sure this is the simplest, safest way to lose embarrassing bulk. You can get Andrews Effervescent Salt at any drug store for a few cents.

SQUIRREL HILL KOMIC CLUB TO SEE MAGIC

All children are interested in magic, fascinated by the grace and skill of a master of the art.

Years ago a Lawrenceville boy went to see a magician in a downtown theater. He watched closely and went home and tried the tricks himself. After much practice he learned enough magic to give a show in his own backyard. He became quite a hero in the neighborhood.

Step by step, the boy climbed the ladder of success until he was headlined in vaudeville under the name of Tampa.

This same Tampa will be at the Manor Theater Saturday morning for the Junior Club meeting. Any child may come to the meeting, enjoy the entertainment and stay for the regular show, for ten cents. Members of the club have the additional privilege of competing for prizes and participating in the many special features for members only.

HARRIS, DOWNTOWN

Andy Benson, chief executive of the Boy Scouts, will address members of the Harris (Downtown) Chapter at their meeting Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Benson, well known in scout circles, always has something interesting to say, so don't miss Saturday's meeting. There will be life savers, books and special stage entertainment, too.

KIPPY, THE CLOWN

Members of Cameraphone and Schenley Chapters are looking forward to meeting Kippy, the Komic Club Clown at their meetings Saturday. If you visited West View Park last summer, you may have seen Kippy capering and making people laugh. He will do the same thing at the club meetings.

If you are not a member of the club, join today. There are many more surprises in store and you won't want to miss them. You will find an application blank on the Comic Page of this edition. Fill it in and mail to the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Clubs, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh.

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave you system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Chance for Railroad Profits Pointed Out

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Addressing 150 investment bankers and railroad officials at the Union League Club, John W. Barriger said the railroads of this country had cut operations cost to such an extent that if they could get back only one-half of the traffic lost during the last two years, they could show as much net income available for stock distribution as in 1929.

Barriger, vice president of International Carriers, Ltd., has just completed a 40,000-mile inspection tour of American and European railroads.

BUTLER ROAD PLEA PUSHED

Immediate completion of the Pittsburgh-Butler Primary Road No. 8 was urged by members of the Chamber of Commerce committee on highways and bridges at a special meeting in the chamber yesterday. Pending approval by the board of directors, the resolution will be presented to Gov. Pinchot and Secretary of Highways Lewis.

Speakers were Henry Tranter, J. I. McCahill, Bedell Monro, of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation; Eugene L. Connelly and Wyn B. Morris, president of the Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company.

They declared in favor of the project both as an emergency improvement and as a necessary link in the chain of good roads that bring the Pittsburgh market to neighboring communities. The dangerous condition of the road from Wildwood to Bakerstown, an Allegheny County stretch, was stressed, with emphasis on grade crossings and dangerous curves.

WILKINSBURG FURLOUGHS BANNED

Borough Council to Retain Employes Despite Efforts To Slash Tax Millage

Wilkinsburg Borough Council does not intend to furlough or release any of the borough's 90 employes, it has been announced by ohn M. Rhodes, Council president, in discussing the possibility of cutting $18,600 from the annual budget to effect a reduction of one-half mill in the tax rate.

He explained that the employes make an average of over $2,000 a year and if their salaries were cut 10 per cent the payroll would be reduced from $186,000 to $167,400. Rhodes said:

"Although this would make no considerable dent in the budget, it would make possible a reduction in the borough tax rate on property and benefit all taxpayers."

A plan will be worked out at a series of budget conferences during the next few weeks, according to Rhodes.

Simultaneously with the tax discussion by Council, a school board committee is studying costs in operation. The survey is being made by M. H. Henning, A. B. McMurray and Mrs. Mary S. Dean.

The school tax now is 17 mills.

BUYING POWER SPURS RETAIL MARKETS

Section's Purchasing Habits Rank First, Report Shows; Low Price Appeal Lacking

The East End district offers better purchasing fields than other Pittsburgh neighborhood sections, it was revealed Tuesday to members of the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce at their weekly luncheon in the McCann dining room.

Medium and higher priced goods find a larger market, J. Victor Richardson of the consumers' research division of R. L. Polk & Co., said in discussing the findings of the recent market survey made in Pittsburgh.

Richardson explained the survey had been purchased by the Sun-Telegraph for exclusive distribution to merchants of Pittsburgh. Analysis of the findings are available without any charge from the Sun-Telegraph to any merchant seeking to improve sales through merchandising to the needs as revealed for trade.

Comparison of East End district figures with the city as a whole were made by the speaker. Family buying power groups were divided into three classes. The 6,700 families of the best class represent 7.63 per cent of the East End population as against 5.15 per cent in the city. The middle class of 42,020 families represent 47.85 per cent as against only 45.67 per cent. A lower percentage of lower class buyers was revealed at 44.52 per cent in comparison with the city average of 49.18 per cent.

While the average rent paid in the city equals $39.72 the East End district average is $47.73. Analysis of buying power revealed 8.84 per cent pay high prices for merchandise. The city average is 6.67 per cent. Medium prices appeal to 40.77 per cent while the city average for this class of buyers is 39.89 per cent. Less appeal for the low prices is seen in the comparison of 50.39 per cent as against 53.64 per cent.

The percentage of buying in the neighborhood shops was cited as better than in the city as a whole. Shoes are purchased by 28.97 per cent; women's apparel, 36.35 per cent, and men's apparel, 22.82 per cent; comparing, respectively, with city habits as follows: 20.60 per cent, 18.60 per cent and 15.86 per cent. Less installment buying also was revealed. While 68.33 per cent of the city does not purchase on installment offers, the East End district percentage is higher at 69.35 per cent.

ART EXHIBITION OF WOMEN'S WORK OPEN

Junior League Presents Mrs. Schmertz' Display Of Simple Paintings

By PENELOPE REDD

The Junior League presents, through November 14, an exhibition of paintings by Mildred Schmertz. The exhibition is open, free to the public, every day from 10 to four at the Junior League's galleries on the mezzanine floor of the Clarke Building.

Mrs. Schmertz projects in her canvases the enthusiasm of youth. The mother of a large and growing family, she frequently needs docile subjects that will brook maternal interruptions.

Therefore, she gathers flowers from her garden or borrows fruit from the kitchen to animate the pottery, textiles and other studio paraphernalia for her still life paintings.

Miss Redd

She does not waste time in intellectual gymnastics but paints with gusto in a burgeoning style unabashed by the conventions of plastic formulae.

Nor does Mrs. Schmertz baptize her canvases either with abstract titles such as "Composition No. 9" or with the oblique ones currently used to stimulate curiosity.

The simplicity of her method in practically alternating between the two titles, "Still Life" and "Flowers," has descriptive disadvantages to one writing of her show.

There is a brilliant flower piece hung near the portrait of "Dorothy" that illustrates Mrs. Schmertz as exuberant but coherent.

Her ambition is not limited to still-life paintings. She essays portraits, and even groups of figures do not daunt her.

She has the old-fashioned virtue of perceiving a paintable subject and setting it down in pigment without losing her original emotional impetus. The theoretical labyrinths which contemporary intellectual standards in painting demand do not trouble her.

Mrs. Schmertz' exhibition is free from technical affectation, and she communicates vividly her own joy of life.

ERLANGER GIFT TOLD IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—A $10,000 banknote displayed by Charlotte Fixel, former showgirl, was cited yesterday by a witness as evidence of Miss Fixel's right to be declared the common-law wife of Abraham L. Erlanger and to share in the theatrical magnate's estate, which she estimates at about $75,000,000.

Henry Newell, an interior decorator, testified Miss Fixel told him Erlanger had given her the banknote as a birthday present. He said he dined with the couple frequently.

Newell denied, under cross-examination, that he ever had "gone out with Mrs. Erlanger" or had met her in Philadelphia.

VOTE MACHINE PAYMENT SUIT ENDS QUICKLY

County Expected to Settle Poole Claim Promptly, as Foes Fail to Post Bond

Speedy payment of the $400,467 due the Poole Engineering and Machine Company on the 1,100 vote machines delivered to Allegheny County was expected today as the result of the failure of objecting taxpayers to post a $10,000 bond yesterday.

Counsel for Ada Bassett and other taxpayers who were endeavoring to intervene in the company's mandamus suit to enforce payment, did not present the bond yesterday, the last day to do so.

As a result, a hearing before Judge Elder W. Marshall this morning was a mere formality, with Attorney Arch W. Powell, representing County Controller Robert G. Woodside, testifying that the Controller's office believed the machines were satisfactory.

The company's suit against Woodside and County Treasurer John Francis was heard before Judge Marshall on Friday.

Attorneys C. F. C. Arensberg and Ella Graubert, representing taxpayers in the suit previously filed seeking an injunction against further payments until a re-examination of the Poole machines by the state, asked leave to intervene in the mandamus action. Judge Marshall granted their request on condition that $10,000 bond should be posted no later than yesterday.

Judge Marshall said he required the bond because a preliminary injunction had not been sought in the "injunction" suit, which would have required the posting of a bond, and the suit had not been pressed.

John Demmer, of 750 Cherokee street, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital last night, where shot was removed from 28 wounds in his legs. Demmer was accidently shot while hunting in Mercer County. He was brought to the hospital by a friend, and later taken to his home.

Girl Asks $10,000 Balm From Suitor

Winnie Hauff, of 1429 Stedman street, today filed a breach of promise suit asking $10,000 damages from Paul C. Markwort. She alleges that they became engaged to marry in 1929. Last spring he told her that his love had grown cold, she avers, and that he did not intend to marry her.

ROBBERS TAKE STORE SAFE

Robbers entered two drug stores last night and carried an 800-pound safe from one of them. Whisky and cigarets, together with about $50 in cash, were obtained in the two robberies.

A radio scout crew passing the Frazier pharmacy, 3538 Frazier street, discovered a front door open. Investigation showed the safe had been carried out and, it is believed, carted away in a truck. The safe contained about $25. Twelve pints of liquor also were taken.

Robbers at the offices of the West Penn Lacquer Company, 5707 Friendship avenue, secured $62 from an unlocked safe, according to A. N. Selbert, manager.

Old customers riding more . .
More folks using taxis

REDUCED RATES have made Parmelee System taxicabs available to many new groups of Pittsburghers. Our old friends, regular cab users, are pleased.

New riders within the past ten days include office workers who have found that they could club together and use a cab economically, quickly and comfortably to business. More women shopping or on social calls are riding with us.

Business is brisk at our telephone switchboard...Grant 8100...last week more than 100,000 Pittsburghers used this service. And the best thing about it—every day shows more patrons than the same day the previous week. It's a healthy sign when you can increase sales in these times.

The new rate was a surprise to the public. Voluntarily offered by the Parmelee System, it was met with a popular response showing approval of our efforts to service the city at a lower fare.

Proof of the increased good-will is the increased patronage.

Back of the working out of this new rate is our policy to give a high quality of cab service at low cost.

A complete replacement of all old cabs.

Elimination of wasteful competitive and overhead expenses of Green and Yellow Companies.

New and lower prices for tires and other supplies.

Savings secured through bulk storage of gasoline.

We lowered operating costs and improved the service in order to pass on to the public a lower rate and win more patronage. And increased cab business brings increased employment—when you use a cab you help employment because in effect you engage a private chauffeur whose earnings are increased by every trip. No other method of public transportation does this to such a large extent.

Today's rate is lower than we would have thought possible two years ago, but the many difficult problems have been met and solved. Pittsburgh taxicab industry has entered a new era. If you have not yet demonstrated the saving, why not, at the first opportunity, prove to yourself what a beneficial reduction has been made in the rate.

LEADER SHOT IN VOTE ROW

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—H. H. Denhardt, former Adjutant General of the Kentuckey National Guard and former Lieutenant Governor, was wounded early today in an encounter on a downtown street here. He was shot once in the shoulder and is believed to be in a serious condition.

Witnesses told police Denhardt was shot by W. K. Dent, a Republican worker in Tuesday's election. The shooting was said to have resulted from ill feeling over political issues. Denhardt is a Democrat.

Dent was one of four men named in warrants issued yesterday as the result of a shooting Tuesday during the election. He was charged with assault and battery. During Tuesday's altercation at one of the suburban precincts, Henry Hines, former Police Judge and a Democratic worker, was alleged to have fired a pistol shot at Dent. The bullet lodged in election cards in Dent's pocket.

COOK BESIEGED BY 100 TAKEN

MONTEREY, Cal., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Joe Winslow, Negro cook, sought for the wounding of Corp. Fred Church, 11th United States Cavalry, was captured after standing off more than 100 soldiers and deputy sheriffs for half an hour from his barricaded home here yesterday.

The soldiers were called from the Monterey presidio. A riot gun blew the lock off Winslow's door. Winslow, armed with two revolvers and a rifle, suffered a bullet wound in one hand before he surrendred. No one else was injured.

Police were mystified by the attack on Corp. Church. Winslow told officers he believed the Ku Klux Klan was after him. Witnesses said Church was shot as he was walking along a street. Physicians said his condition was critical.

'KISSING BANDIT' ESCAPES PEN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Edna Murray, 30, known as Kansas City's "kissing bandit," whose former husband, "Diamond Joe" Sullican, was executed in Arkansas for murder, escaped from the woman's department of the State Penitentiary last night. With two other women prisoners, she climbed over a high wire fence. It was Mrs. Murray's second escape.

After she and two companions kidnaped W. H. Southward, Kansas City grocery store manager and ordained minister, April 6, 1925, and robbed him of $195, she offered, in parting, to kiss him. Southward declined.

Mrs. Murray and her husband, Jack Murray, each was convicted of first degree robbery and given a 25-year sentence.

Two Pittsburghers Held on Rum Charge

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 5.—(INS.)—Pleading guilty to charges of possession of intoxicants, Mike Messina and Joe Deffinis, both of Pittsburgh, today were held in Erie County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bail pending a court hearing.

Both men entered pleas of guilty to the charges against them when they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Walter Goodwin here a short time after they were arrested by state troopers near here.

Low Water Hinders St. Lawrence Ships

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The water level of the St. Lawrence River has fallen so much that ocean-going vessels are leaving with less than capacity cargoes. Some larger liners are loading to the full draft permitted, but are waiting until they reach Quebec City to take aboard the fuel oil needed for the ocean trip.

M'DONALD LAYS CABINET PLANS

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(INS.)—Unless Prime Minister MacDonald decides to act as his own foreign minister in the new national cabinet, the post probably will go to Lord Irwin, former viceroy of India, according to reports in political circles today.

MacDonald remained at his home in Lossiemouth, getting a few days' rest before the opening of Parliament next week, but kept in touch with political leaders in London by telephone in his efforts to get the cabinet completed by Monday.

Meanwhile, an international monetary conference and an empire currency conference were recommended today in a report of the Federation of British Industries and the Empire Economic Union.

The report, drafted by Sir Basil Blackett and Sir Robert Horne, said the world economic depression was due partly to monetary maladjustments, and urged action within the empire to raise price levels.

SENATORS BACK STABILIZATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Creation of a national economic council to level the violent ups and downs of business will be one of the first recommendations the Senate receives next month from its committees.

A favorable report on the La Follette bill to set up such a council as a governmental agency was assured today from the manufacturers' subcommittee, which has been holding hearings on it daily for two weeks.

The measure has been indorsed by a long line of witnesses before the committee, including many prominent industrialists, labor leaders and economists. Virtually no opposition has been expressed, though a few of those who testified expressed some doubt of its effectiveness. The hearings have been temporarily completed.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Hmmm. I wonder . . . I mean, I wonder if I'll be able to handle it . . . Holy Smokes! . . . Four broadcasts every week and the column every day! . . . Never saw so many lawyers in my life—or executives! . . . Some of them are still in my hair . . . How can anybody be so technical? . . . If an "and" is left out or a "whereas" or a "to-wit" isn't in the right place they go crazy . . . So what happens? . . . So you sit there for hours while they fix it . . . And then talk, talk, talk and talk until the stenog types the darn thing all over again! . . . Oh, well . . . I'd rather mingle with lawyers under those conditions—but they all are such argument-starters and headache-givers! . . . No wonder Jimmy Walker said that . . . I mean when he said he wished that he could be himself again . . . And go places without bothering about this and that . . . Look what happened at the Ed Wynn premiere . . . An army of autographounds surrounded him during the intermission, and to be a regular guy he jotted down his signature when all he wanted was a chance to puff a ciggie . . . Then along came a bunch of People Who Knew Him When and he was liberal with his money . . . He didn't mind that, I know, but that's what he gets for being Mayor. . . . He once said he was fed up with it all . . . Mebbeso . . . But when the day comes and he is hidden in the crowd—he'll miss it all. . . . It was Chesterfield's idea that no man deserves reputation who does not desire it, and Plutarch said, "Man's applause is but a transient dream."

Wonder if it is true that Jane Meager is secretly betrothed to that flier's brother? . . . She's an attractive person . . . I thought Woolworth Donahue was the steady . . . They tell me her tribe has more coin than all the governments now have in Europe . . . Her coming-out event will be the outstanding affair of the social season. . . . It ought to be a swell party and I'm glad I'm not on the invitation list, for nothing is so phony and so uncomfortable as a starched shirt . . . I see where that mind reader who was getting away with this and that several months ago in New York has finally met his Waterloo . . . When I was kidding him in the paper I never mentioned his name . . . But he assumed (oh, those guilty consciences!) that I meant him . . . And he used the radio to combat me . . . I had never been that cruel in print to anything or anybody . . . But now the Society of American Magicians wishes me to publish the fact that Raiah Raboid was unanimously expelled on October 21st! . . . Gee, I'm glad to hear that Ed Wynn's new show is that good. . . . They tell me it went big at the opening . . . I couldn't make it what with this and that to do . . . But Wynn deserves a hot break . . . He spent a mess of coin putting hundreds of people to work and overcame all the obstacles put in his way by all those experts . . . That refreshing and clean odor on West 45th St. is there because Ed Wynn is the only guy in the business who refused to put one line, gag or stitch-ee-ay-shun in a show to make it foul.

Funny about Peter Arno's break in the week-end theatrical sections . . . Peter, who is unquestionably a great artist and caricaturist, made his own drawings on his new show for the papers. . . . And he also drew second position because of a guy named Shakespeare, whose "Hamlet" arrives the same week . . . Well, if Stimson can make a blunder so can Mrs. Winchell's darling baby boy . . . I called him "President" Laval on the air last week—and how the mail came in reminding me that I did! . . . But Mr. Stimson ought to know better . . . He's the Secretary of State and he's supposed to know all about foreign affairs and so forth . . . So what did he do in his talk at the Rivoli? . . . He fumbled, also, and instead of calling Laval a Premier he called him President . . . So now I feel better . . . Well, hush mah mouth! . . . I never thought I'd live to see the day! . . . Bob Newcomb, who used to write such sophisticated verse for my col'm, now sits down at a typewriter with a bottle of gin within reach and pounds out tales for tots, such as "Togo the Teddy Bear," and goo like that! . . . And he's trying to keep it from his friends, haw!

That's probably what keeps me interested in Broadway . . . I mean hearing things like that about the Conkwrights . . . Marie and her husband, who parted after 12 years, and were seen in public with other companions, are now traipsing together again! . . . If you try to keep up with people and their erratic traits—you can go a little crazy . . . All I want from the Conkwrights, and the likes of them, is readable copy . . . Good old Walt Kingsley, Broadway's most interesting character at one time, would shudder if he saw Conky's address book . . . Walter had what was said to be the most complete and largest list of gal's names and addresses of anyone in the world . . . It was nothing compared to Conky's . . . It's the size of a phone book! . . . He says he jots them down so that when he needs a model he can call on them . . . Yeah? . . . I think I'll pass along the complete and simple explanation of the Einstein Theory . . . If you were to live forever and had an infinitely powerful telescope and you kept looking forever, you eventually would see the back of your neck.

I like that about Martin, the Waffle Man . . . He takes care of and feeds broken down terpsichorines who are out of work and get hungry . . . He accepts their I. O. U.'s—and the gals promise to pay him when they can . . . I oughta print something about the crook who swiped that suitcase from Ward Arnold's car in front of the Chanin Theater on the Sabbath . . . The valise contained every suit Arnold owned, and he is willing to reward the thief with more coin than he can possibly get for the goods in a hockshop . . . Besides, the clothess couldn't fit the average person—Arnold's only 6 feet tall! . . . Funny line of Charlie Butterworth's in that movie, "The Bargain" . . . Charlie wears such large and funny collars. He alibis that he wears such large collars because he is expecting a goitre! . . . Heheheh . . . And I'll bet Al Schwartz, contributor, thinks he's kidding when he submits as a simile: "Peaceful as an insane asylum to a retired columnist."

Well, it's a relief now that Gloria is well again . . . I love it when people try to comfort you by saying not to worry when a child has a fever of one point less than 105 for days! . . . They tell you it means nothing to a youngster . . . Really? . . . Try and sleep, eat or gather paragraphs when something you adore is limp and in pain . . . Good old Dr. Kerley . . . He brought her around again—just the way he did when she was 3 months old and she was so sick. . . . At the time June didn't tell me Gloria was seriously ill . . . So I wouldn't worry, she said later . . . It was a swell way I found it out, though . . . I'll never forget it so long as I live . . . It was about 8 bells and I was just coming home, all messy with the fumes of night clubs and dives and the people that frequent them . . . And as I walked into the apartment the day nurse was relieving the night one, who had her bag all packed in her hand . . . "What's the idea?" the day nurse whispered to the other gal . . . "Shhh," she replied, "I don't think they'll need me any more" . . . That's one pain I hope I never experience again . . . But we all fooled that nurse, by golly! . . . That is, the greatest baby doctor in the world did! . . . I can see what would happen if I got sentimental and jotted all that down in the paper . . . The army of fooeys would anonymously write me: "He's bringing his kids on for bows!" . . . That would worry me a lot, that would . . . It always does.

Studio May Establish Stage Stock Troupe

Warner Brothers may establish a stage stock company of their own contract players on Broadway to try out plays before they are screened, according to persistent rumors. Such a system would take the place of the long rehearsal periods which now slow down production in Hollywood, it is said.

Wealthy of Phila. Warned to Aid Jobless

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Philadelphia's wealthiest citizens have been warned they must utilize their riches to solve the unemployment crisis as a matter of self-defense.

E. T. Stotesbury, philanthropist and member of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., said the wealthy must contribute voluntarily to meet the wants of the needy or risk the loss of much greater amounts by federal taxation.

The edict was issued at a private dinner given at Stotesbury's home in Chestnut Hill for that particular purpose.

Lil Dagover May Make More Than One Film If She's Liked by Public

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.

As soon as her picture is completed, Lil Dagover, Warner's German star, will return to her native land to appear in a stage play.

This doesn't necessarily mean she is through with Hollywood. Her first American talkie, "The Captain's Wife," is being rushed onto the screen so studio officials can see how the public will take her.

If the film is a success, Warners will exercise their option for three more. In the meanwhile, rather than be idle in Hollywood, Miss Dagover has accepted the German stage contract.

Lil Dagover

At the time of her arrival in New York, Warners provided the star with a personal publicity man and there was much blowing of trumpets. Walter Huston appeared opposite her in her Hollywood talkie, and Michael Curtiz directed.

I HEARD TODAY

John M. Stahl and Roxanne Ray pulled a surprise on their friends. They left Sunday night for the East, accompanied by the bride-to-be's mother and father. The wedding will take place in Chicago or in New York . . . Patsy Ruth Miller is up and around now. She is trying to get the doctor to allow her to return to work . . . Herbert Brenon is wondering who left a gold watch at his house Sunday . . . George Hill got back from Reno Monday, a free man. He and Frances Marion were married about a year and a half . . . Both Walter Huston and his ex-wife are living in the same Beverly Hills apartment hotel . . . Have a card from Lilyan Tashman and Ed Lowe. They were in Potsdam and headed for Budapest . . . The public stares at the stars, but you should have seen the film celebrities peer at the Hilton sisters, Siamese twins.

TERRIBLE THOUGHT

Now that John Hertz, the taxicab king, is on the Paramount board of directors, Al Boasberg says the studio writers are in a panic for fear he'll put meters on their typewriters.

COULDN'T SIGN HIM

Out at M. G. M. they had a risky piece of business for Wally Beery to do. Finally it was decided to use a double instead. Casting offices were called, individuals were asked but no one could be found who looked enough like Beery to be used in the scene.

The following morning the associate producer of the picture had cause to make a visit to the county jail, (reasons not known). While there he spied a prisoner who was a great duplicate for Wally.

"What's he in for?" he cried excitedly.

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Turning from comedy to tragedy last night, the Abbey Players revealed the darker side of human life with a poignancy and pathos almost majestic. The play was St. John Ervine's somber classic, "John Ferguson," and F. J. McCormick acted the title role with a solemn restraint more moving than gusts of passion.

George Seibel

This is the play on which the Theater Guild was built. When they produced it in 1919 they had exactly $19.50 in their treasury. It was a great success and supplied the funds for the Guild to carry on. Isadora Duncan's brother, Augustin, played Ferguson, and Dudley Digges was Jimmy Caesar in that production. They could not have given a finer performance than McCormick and Barry Fitzgerald did last night at the Twentieth Century Club.

The drama is a ghastly piece of irony, summed up in the words of Hannah, "God's late!" John Ferguson's Bible reading and his trust in God do not avert from his house the manifold sorrow and shame of fate. Clutie, the idiot beggar who is so keen, is the instrument of justice that redresses the balance. The drama is a sort of inverted theodicy like "Lear."

MORE MARVELOUS ACTING

It gave the Irish players another opportunity to do more marvelous acting. Besides McCormick and Fitzgerald, there was Michael J. Dolan as "Clutie," almost eerie in his gaunt penury; there was Maureen Delaney as the mother, a reflection of her husband's pious fatalism; there was Kate Curling as the daughter, desolate in disgrace and grief; there was Arthur Shields as the son, slow in his decision but firm at heart.

Every one of the actors deserved the label "impressive," and several that of "magnificent." The scenes in which John Ferguson comforts his hysterical daughter and that in which he wants to save his son from the law were overpowering.

"PROFESSOR TIM"

As prelude to this tragic masterpiece, George Shiel's delightful comedy of "Professor Tim" was played at the matinee. It is another domestic history, with love's young dream blighted because Farmer Hugh's farm is to be sold at auction and Darling Peggy's nagging mother wants her to marry the doltish son of the rich Kilroys—people who "ought to be drowned at baptism."

Into this dismal prospect staggers Prof. Tim, the learned brother about whom Mrs. Scally has been bragging. He is a drunken scalawag and makes his sister's life miserable for three acts. But Peggy shows kindness to her inebriate and ragged uncle, which proves a good investment. Somewhere between fairy tale and melodrama, Shiels has found a highly amusing group of characters and put them into deliciously vexing situations. McCormick was the rare comedian here, and that charming actress, Eileen Crowe, was the sweet heroine.

Tonight the Irish players move to Carnegie Music Hall and present "The White-Headed Boy," by Lennox Robinson.

Oil Well in Ocean Kills Fish, Fowl

HERMOSA BEACH, Cal., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Oil bubbling upward in the ocean eight miles off the coast here was believed responsible for a heavy scum of crude oil which covered five square miles, killing thousands of fish and many sea fowl.

The birds, diving for the fish, were trapped by the scum.

Residents believed the volunteer oil well was shaken into activity by a slight earthquake felt here and in nearby towns yesterday.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Gilbert Miller presents." Familiar words to those who read the very top lines of theater programs. Week after next they will appear on the programs of both legitimate theaters. Gilbert Miller then will present Helen Hayes in a new play, "The Good Fairy," in the Alvin, and one of his New York successes, Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," in the Nixon. The former will be the second production in the Professional Players' subscription series, while the Nixon offering will be in the same order in the Theater Guild list. In the Alvin, on the opening night, Mr. Miller, son of the late Henry Miller, will do more than "present." He will act—for one night only.

Small Timer says that money may not make happiness certain, but it helps to keep it from being uncertain.

Thanksgiving week isn't so far off that the theaters are not already making preparations for the period when those of us who have been talking turkey will pause to eat our words. "Three's a Crowd," which calls itself the Revue of Revues, will do its holidaying in Mr. Harry Brown's favorite theater, the Nixon. Libby Holman, Clifton Webb and Fred Allen head the crowd. Mr. George M. Young, who leans on the Alvin for support, wants to know who's a better boy to make folks thankful than Al Jolson. And answers himself, "Nobody!" So he's bringing Al and "The Wonder Bar" and Claire Windsor and Lina Basquette for the big November feast.

Small Timer says that the reason he is becoming thinner is that the missus is on a diet.

The Irish Players switch from the Twentieth Century Club to Carnegie Music Hall tonight, when Lennox Robinson's "The White-Headed Boy" will be the offering. The engagement closes there Friday night with Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock."

Small Timer says he will attend a meeting of the bored Friday evening—husbands of the members of his wife's bridge club.

Smoke a fresh cigarette

The tobaccos in CAMELS have never been parched or toasted!

The source of that rare freshness is the fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

These full-mellow, sun-ripened tobaccos—more costly and choice to start with—are naturally smooth, cool, fragrant, palatable.

The natural moisture which infuses them with mildness and flavor is vigilantly safeguarded and skilfully preserved—our tobaccos are never parched or toasted.

The Camel Humidor Pack is a great boon to smokers because it insures that a perfectly conditioned fresh cigarette comes to you in prime smoking condition.

If you smoke Camels you know what that means—what a relief they offer from the harsh hot smoke of dusty-dry factory-stale tobaccos.

BATTALINO FIGHTS FURIOUSLY TO KEEP TITLE

MANY DIAMOND VETS LIKELY TO PASS

JUDGING FROM EARLY developments, baseball's present off-season is likely to be marked in the major leagues by the passing or shifting of an unusual number of veteran players, coaches and managers. Some are to go out altogether, and others will be moved to different clubs. Following the unconditional release of Catcher Cy Perkins by the Yankees, Brooklyn reports indicate another early addition to the list in the person of Outfielder Rube Bressler. The Flatbush club, it is said, has asked waivers on Bressler, or is preparing to do so, and it is expected that similar action will be taken in the case of Pitcher Dolf Luque.

Rube Bressler

Bressler and Luque have two of the longest service records in the big show. Rube, now 37, was trying to pitch for Connie Mack as far back as 1914. He returned to the minors for a couple of years, but his hitting ability has enabled him to stay in fast company continuously since 1917 as an outfielder and first baseman. Luque, nearly 42, got a trial in 1913, and has remained up since 1918. Only Jack Quinn and Urban Fazer in the major pitching ranks are older than the Cuban.

BRESSLER AND LUQUE, like Perkins, must be given their unconditional freedom under the 10-year service rule if no other club claims them through the waiver channel. If turned loose to seek new jobs in the main tent or drift to the minors they will be added to a group of released vets that is beginning to assume unusual proportions.

Some of these, Jewel Ens, for instance, may catch on with other major clubs, but right now the list having no big league connections is an uncommonly lengthy one for such an early stage of the off period. Besides Ens and Perkins, it includes Wilbert Robinson, Donie Bush, Oscar Stanage, Roger Bresnahan and Jean Dubuc. Jess Haines may not return on account of an arm injury, and Earl Sheely and others are on the way out.

OFFICIAL AVERAGES OF the New York-Pennsylvania League for 1931 indicate that the Pirates picked up one of the best hitters in the minors when they bought Catcher Bill Steinecke from Binghamton. The youngster was only keeping up a consistent clouting record when he led that loop in batting with an average of .361 for 137 games.

Steinecke never has fallen below the .300 mark since he became a regular in the pro ranks after leaving DePaul College. He hit .311 for Waterloo in 1928, .317 for Seattle in 1929, and .307 for Binghamton in 1930.

FOOTBALL FANS OF this district have been following the fortunes of the University of Alabama team with particular interest, for the reason that Wallace Wade's successor as head coach there is a local man. Frank Thomas, 'Bama's present mentor, hails from the Woods Run sector. He is a nephew of Cup Jenkins, chief of police of Homestead. Thomas was a member of the Notre Dame's elevens of 1922 and 1923 and coached at Chattanooga before shifting to Alabama. He has made a good showing this fall, his team defeating Howard, Mississippi, Mississippi Aggies, Sewanee and Kentucky and losing only to Tennessee.

Tarcisio Onder

TARCISIO (CHEESO) ONDER, husky Jeannette gridder, who has been playing guard on the Pitt second team, will be getting a birthday present when he is given the starting assignment in Hart Morris' place at right guard against Carnegie Tech Saturday.

For on that day Onder will be celebrating his twentieth anniversary. He is one of the biggest guards in Pitt history, being built like the old-time linemen. Cheeso scales 197 pounds, but carries his weight well. Like Daugherty and Hirshberg he is a transplated fullback, having played the latter position at Jeannette High School.

THOUGH JOCK SUTHERLAND has turned out a number of great gridiron teams, he and his friends will always look back with particular pride on the crack service eleven he coached in 1918. His team won the service championship that year from Camp Dix at Washington, 32 to 0.

It also defeated Camp Hancock, coached by Larry Conover, of Penn State; Camp Forrest, coached by Frank Wolf, of Penn State and Waynesburg; Camp Oglethorpe, and Charleston and Savannah Navy yards. Camp Gordon, headed by Strupper and other Georgia Tech stars, pleaded cases of boils on two occasions when a game was proposed.

SUTHERLAND'S SERVICE LINEUP included some well-known college stars. Sutherland himself and Pud Seidel, another former Pitt player, were the guards; Telfer, of Cornell, and Stewart, of Colgate, were the ends; Dr. W. D. McClelland, of Pitt, until recently boxing commissioner, was at quarterback; Doc Budd, of Pitt, and Topham, of Bucknell, were at the halves, and Santifer, of Nebraska, played one of the tackles. Topham played on the 1912 Bucknell team, which defeated Pitt, 6 to 0. He was still a star when he played for Sutherland in 1918, a great punter and passer in addition to being a rare ball carrier.

Fielding H. Yost declares the Michigan eleven of 1925 was greater than the famous team of 1901. As he coached both teams, he ought to know, but his assertion has started a series of lively discussions wherever Michigan men gather. While he was talking football, Yost was asked how Willie Heston would fit into a modern attack. Could he throw or catch passes?

"Had Heston been a member of the 1925 team he would have established himself as one of the greatest receivers of forward passes in history," the old coach replied. "Heston had a quicker start than any other back that ever played. Archie Hahn then was Olympic Games sprint champion. Heston could not beat him in 50 yards, but could beat him four yards in the first 10.

HESTON COULD HAVE received passes and got away before any pass defender could lay a hand on him; he was that quick in starting and that shifty. How he would have run behind a line like that of 1925!"

Another old Michigan man adds that any of the great sprinters—Paddock, Tolan, Bracey, Wykoff and one or two others—gifted with Heston's ability to break away quickly and catch full speed in the first step, would have covered 100 yards in nine seconds flat.

Battling Battalino

You've got to hand it to this Battling Battalino guy. He has done a lot of dodging in the matter of defending his world featherweight championship, and he has been beaten more than a dozen times in non-title bouts, but every time he has staked his crown he has come right through with the goods. On top of the evidence of unsuspected ability which he had previously given in turning back such dangerous looking challengers as Kid Chocolate and Fidel LaBarba, Bat put on the clincher in Chicago last night when he retained his diadem by winning the decision over Earl Mastro, the most formidable of the present crop of contenders. That he was as successful in 10 rounds as in the New York routes of 15 demonstrated that the 126-pound titleholder has more than ruggedness and stamina to recommend him, and that he doesn't have to depend on those qualities to win for him. Battalino looked very much like a cheese champion at the beginning of his title reign, but he has turned out to be the real thing.

MASTRO, DOWN TWICE, MAKES FINE SHOWING

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Bat Battalino, world featherweight champion, set back the fourth challenger for his title by defeating Earl Mastro, Chicago youngster, in a furious, closely fought 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night.

Bat, who only fights like a champion when his title is at stake, fought like a tiger to conquer the skillful Chicago boy. Battalino was entirely too rugged and too aggressive for Mastro, the master boxer, although the fight was so close that one of the judges voted in favor of a draw.

DECISION CLOSE

The referee, Dave Barry, and the other judge, however, cast their ballots for Battalino, although the margin of points was close. Barry, in his score sheet, credited Battalino with 51 points to 49 for Mastro.

The verdict was popular with 14,022 spectators who paid $40,353 to witness the title engagement.

Battalino scored two knockdowns, another time sent Mastro reeling to the ropes, and on other occasions was the master when punches were flying the fastest. From the start he drove his fists to the body, and kept it up to the finish. But the Chicagoan made a terrific battle of it all the way. He was outclassed only in ruggedness and slugging.

Battalino knocked Mastro into the ropes and to the floor in the second round and in the next instant again drove him into the ropes. Only the ropes supported Mastro and kept him from hitting the floor again. His danger was only momentary, as he was fighting back punch for punch before the round ended.

EARL WEATHERS STORM

Battalino's first knockdown came when he sank a left to the body and then cracked a right and left to Earl's jaw. Mastro's back hit the ropes and he sank to the floor, jumping up again before a count could be started. The champ charged when Mastro got to his feet, throwing a barrage of punches to the head and body that knocked Mastro again into the ropes.

Mastro, weathering the storm, tore into Battalino to trade punches with him. The fighting was so furious that they continued after the bell sounded, and it was necessary to chase them to their corners.

In the sixth, just before the session ended, Battalino dropped Mastro for a count with a savage punch to the body.

Ringsiders were unanimous that Battalino had a shade in at least five of the 10 rounds.

MANDELL HUMILIATED

Sammy Mandell, former world lightweight champion, suffered the humiliation of having his eight rounds with Ralph Lenny, Union City, N. J., declared no contest. They followed the terrific fight between Mastro and Battalino and, as a result, their contest appeared slow and uninteresting. Mandell was back on his heels most of the time with Lenny, a sharp shooting boxer, the aggressor.

COCHRAN, HOPPE WIN AGAIN

Local billiardists were no match for Welker Cochran, 18.1 champion, and Willie Hoppe, who meet here in title combat next week, in their exhibition contests last night.

W. Heimert was defeated by Cochran, 250 to 37, at Ueberle's parlors, Oakland, the champion scoring a high run of 99 and Heimert 18.

J. S. Mason fell before Hoppe, 250 to 36, in the William Penn parlors, Willie's high run being 100, his opponent 12.

B. Schwartz meets Cochran at Ueberle's, and Bill Chapman opposes Hoppe in the William Penn, tonight.

Georgia State Cancels West Liberty Game

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Georgia State's football team, scheduled to play West Liberty College here Armistice Day, has canceled the game without giving an explanation, Harry Sweeney, West Liberty athletic director, said last night.

Sweeney also made known that West Liberty had asked Davis and Elkins College athletic officials if the Elkins school would be interested in a charity game to be played with West Liberty here on any date between November 13 and Thanksgiving.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: FOUND HIS OWN NAME ON A GRAVESTONE—Thomas Ivor Prosser, of Porthcawl, Wales, went to a funeral in Porthcawl and, after the burial rites had been performed, he wandered through the graveyard, casually reading the old head stones. To his astonishment he found one bearing a name identical to his, admonishing him, as a namesake, to be prepared to follow the departed Prosser. And a further coincidence was the fact that one Prosser died on the birthdate of the other. The living Prosser has retired to think things out.

OSTROSKY GETS LEWIS' JOB AGAINST PITT

By JESS CARVER

There will be a lot softer spots about the country Saturday afternoon than that in which Tony Ostrosky, one of New Castle's prides and joys, will find himself. Tony has been elected to replace the injured Lib Lewis' right end job for Carnegie Tech against Pitt, and it will be squarely at Tony that the Panthers will aim some of their power shots and smashing reverses.

Tony Ostrosky

Young Tony went in there last week against Notre Dame after Lewis had his leg busted and turned in a very creditable performance. He isn't overly big, but he is plenty smart and good and fast. He's another of those Bridenbaugh-trained footballers, and footballers who have prepped under Bridey generally know the time of day.

WILL MEET REIDER

While he's engaged in stopping these Pitt plays, he also will be called upon to nail a fellow townsman, Mister Paul Reider, of the Pitt and first Reiders. Reider, playing right half for the Panthers, will be called upon to do some cruising around and at Tech's right end. And that is where Tony will be playing.

Yesterday's sessions at both Pitt and Tech were worth watching. Both squads were full of the old pepper. The Panthers so far have refused to take the Tartans anything but seriously, which is a dernd good thing for the Panthers. The woods are full of ball clubs that have taken Tech lightly, much to their sorrow.

Bob Waddell had his Skibos out behind the big canvas curtain, and not so much as a peep would he let anyone have at them. You can bet your boots they are working on some brand-new plays to toss in the way of the Panther laddies. They tell me they're going to have another touchdown play for Don Fletcher, and to understand that crack I'll have to tell you a story.

WHAT A PLAY!

Two years ago, when Carnegie went to the Coast to meet U. S. C., the boys drilled all the way out on a very special play. Fletcher was to come back from the line, fake a punt and then hurl a long pass to Red Kennedy, the speed boy of the club.

In the daily drills it worked swell, and the Skibos were all set to throw a scare into the Trojans.

The game started, Tech got the ball, and back came big Fletcher. All he did was drop the pass from center, and with Kennedy a mile down the field and in the open.

The Pitt starting lineup will have Cheesio Onder, the big 200-

Edgewood will provide appropriate trophies for low net and low gross scores, and provision has been made for grill and dining room service by Manager Edward Schoettler.

The field will be limited to a maximum of 65 foursomes, or 260 players, and will start teeing off at 8 a. m. Starting time may be secured in advance, but only for foursomes which include one or more W. P. G. A. members.

Players without starting times will be teed off in foursomes in the order of their arrival. Starting times may be obtained by calling Churchill 2025, Churchill 2024 or Valley 1170 between 10 a. m. and 8 p. m., Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. It is requested cancellations also be reported to the club for the convenience of the starter.

Green fees are to be paid at the time of arrival, upon registration.

Caddies at the Shannopin Country Club will be guests of honor at a banquet and entertainment to begin at 6:30 this evening. Chairman of the Caddie Welfare Committee of the West Penn Golf Association E. E. McCoy, Chester H. Lehman, of Westmoreland, and L. A. Hubach, president of Shannopin, are to be the main speakers. Jim Bunting is in charge of arrangements.

DUKES DEPART FOR EAST

The Dukes will go through a light practice session this afternoon before entraining for Worcester, Mass., at 5 o'clock. The team will leave from the P. & L. E. station and a large gathering of students doubtless will be on hand for a send-off.

Saturday is the first appearance of the Duquesne colors on a down-East gridiron, and the locals would like nothing better than to cop the ball game from the powerful Holy Cross College team.

CRUSADERS AT PEAK

Coach McEwan will have his Crusaders at the peak, however, since they cannot afford to loose the game this week-end, with their Harvard University encounter only one week away. Everything is in favor of the Holy Cross eleven triumphing, since they have only one defeat against them and hold honors for tying the mighty Rams of Fordham and defeating only last Saturday, a hitherto unbeaten Brown University team.

The Dukes are taking the Rev. William E. O'Donnell, dean of men, as chaplain; Dr. L. D. O'Donnell, team physician; two student managers, Carmen Capone and Sebastian Isabella. A squad of 27 players are making the trip. The Red and Blue contingent arrives in Worcester before noon tomorrow and will have a workout tomorrow afternoon.

GAME ON AIR

The Duquesne-Holy Cross game is to be broadcast by Station WORC, of Worcester, Mass. The following will make the Holy Cross trip:

N. B. A. to Stage Light-Heavy Tourney

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The National Boxing Association has authorized the Chicago Stadium to conduct a light heavyweight championship tournament to determine a successor to Maxie Rosenbloom, whose title was declared vacant because he failed to defend it within the six months time limit.

Blank contracts will be forwarded to the leading light heavyweights in the N. B. A. rating. Rosenbloom will be included, but it is understood he has balked. He has expressed a desire, however, to meet the winner.

The first matches will be held, probably, on December 11.

NATIONAL HORSE SHOW OPENS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The pick of the show horses and jumpers of five nations were ready for the opening of the forty-sixth national horse show at Madison Square Garden today.

Every stall in the huge temporary stable was occupied by a champion or challenger from nearly every outstanding show stable in the country. Many entries had to find space in nearby barns.

Before the trumpet sends the last group of jumpers from the lower levels into the brilliantly lighted tanbark late next Wednesday night, equine blue bloods, valued at more than $1,000,000, will have contested for $100,000 in cash awards and trophies. The show will run afternoon and night each day, except Sunday.

COLLEGES RALLY TO AID FUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The call issued a few weeks ago by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on mobilization of relief resources of the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief, for college football to help in raising funds for the unemployed already has met with responses from 128 colleges.

A report by E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, who took over the direction of the project, revealed that 53 teams have arranged special games, 57 are at work on plans for special games, seven have agreed to give the net proceeds of one regular game, and 11 will contribute a part of the receipts of one regular game.

RESPONSE MAGNIFICENT

"The response of the schools and colleges to the call has been magnificent," Hall said. "Only one more thing is necessary to make the whole program a success, and that is the spirit in which these games are supported.

"The arranging of post-season football games on any large scale is not a simple matter. The season within which the weather is suitable is practically at an end. The finding of suitable opponents, suitable dates and the finding of locations which promise good attendance made the problem both complicated and difficult. Many of the leading conferences throughout the country absolutely prohibit such games, but three of the most important of them, the Big Ten, the Rocky Mountain Conference and the Southern Conference, have suspended their bylaws to make it possible to respond to the call."

In addition to the college games, three professional teams, the Chicago Bears, Chicago Car-

W. & J. DROPS TEMPLE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 5.—Temple University will not be a Wash-Jeff football opponent in 1932, it became known here today. The Philadelphia institution had been considered with several other colleges for a late October date until today, when a definite decision was reached to give up the game.

Too many long journeys to the East, with a generally tough card that will more than tax the resources of the team, are believed to be among the reasons for the action. Alleged weird and inefficient officiating in Philadelphia are also believed to have had considerable influence. It was not stated what team would replace Temple.

Thirty candidates for Wash-Jeff's wrestling and boxing teams, about equally divided between the two sports, reported for initial tryouts yesterday. It was announced that Al Demedowitz, halfback on the football team, an experienced wrestler, will have charge of the team instruction and also will compete in the light heavyweight class. Physical Instructor George Bartholemew will coach the boxers.

BENEDICT RELEASED

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—Clint Benedict, veteran goal tender, has been given his unconditional release by the Montreal Maroons, of the National Hockey League, and has applied for a position on the league's refereeing staff.

JACKETS WORK HARD FOR ICE OPENER HERE

Leadership in City League Sectional Grid Races at Stake Tomorrow

LOCALS STRESS TEAMWORK IN DRILLS

By CARL W. SHATTO

Coach Charley Reid put the Yellow Jackets through another stiff two-hour practice session at Duquesne Garden this morning in an effort to whip the local International Hockey League representatives into condition for their exhibition game with the Chicago Hawks, of the National League, here Saturday night, and the title race lid-lifter with the Syracuse Stars at the Craig Street Arena exactly one week hence.

Joe Matte and Gordy Fraser, defense men, and Lewis Holmes and Frank Ingram, wingmen, have been working out with the Chicago club here for the last two weeks, and already are in fine form, but the other members of the Jacket ensemble still are some distance removed from top condition.

LOCKING RECOVERING

Norman Locking, another forward obtained from Chicago early this week along with Ingram and Holmes, is well on the road to recovery after suffering a mild attack of pneumonia, and he is expected to join the Jackets in their drills early next week.

In the workout today Coach Reid had Ty Arbour, another former Chicagoan and Jacket newcomer, at left wing, Eddie Rodden at center and Frank Ingram at right wing on the starting front line. This combination combines a fair amount of speed with great experience and skill, and it probably comprises the forward trio that the Hawks will face when they square off against the locals Saturday.

Indications are that the first reserve line will be made up of Whitey Fields at center, Capt. Tory Gregg at right wing and Cam Proudlock at left wing, although Fields will be shifted to defense in the event that Joe Matte is unable to give Gordy Fraser and Art Berlett sufficient support.

HOLMES MAY BE CENTER

In the event that Fields is shifted to the backfield, Lewis Holmes will take his place at center.

Eddie Ouellette at center and Tex White and Milt Halliday at the wings figure to make up a very respectable third forward wall, but if Bill Holmes, big center who performed for Syracuse last season, decides to accept a Pittsburgh contract the front lines will undergo a shakeup, and Fields will be stationed in the backfield permanently.

Charley Reid, coach of the Yellow Jackets, Pittsburgh's representatives in the International Hockey League, outlined the training program before the local skaters were put through their first workout at Duquesne Garden yesterday. Matte, Arbour and Ingram are new men. The former is a defense player recalled from the local club's Niagara Falls farm, and Arbour and Ingram are forwards recently purchased from Chicago. The Jackets were put through another long drill at the Garden today.

BURNS DEFEATS E. LIVERPOOL

By TOM BIRKS

Stanley Berkman and Joe Morbito collaborated last night to pull a much-discussed play invented by Coach Dorias, of Detroit University. Its success gave Burns a touchdown, and a 12-to-6 victory over East Liverpool in the West Penn Football Conference at Parnassus High School field.

It was in the second period Burns landed on the Pottery 10-yard line, fourth down, and Berkman called the signals. Morbito, hitting the line, promptly fumbled. While everybody hesitated momentarily, Stan Berkman picked up the ball and skirted the end for a touchdown. Temerio missed the extra point kick.

This reverse stung Purl Daily's club, and they battled Burns hard. Schaffer taking a forward pass from Finley to score and even up matters.

Conti, former Villanova back, will be calling signals, with Auchter, Mohler and Boots Klinzing in the lineup.

Boots always plays his best against the Rooneys, and with Muzzio expecting Zaneski to equal Jimmy Rooney's punting, a setback at the present time, with Burns clicking on all cylinders, would be tough for the champions. The lineup:

Burns—12.		East Liverpool—6.
Mercurio	L. E.	Mayer
Dummer	L. T.	Hinkle
Willoughby	L. G.	Mowah
Blackstone	C.	Mullins
Temerio	R. G.	Benedict
Redman	R. T.	Rhoades
Barbero	R. E.	Shaffer
Berkman	Q.	Finley
Ford	L. H.	Charette
Grimmett	R. H.	Diedrich
Morbito	F.	Preece

Score by quarters:

Burns	0	6	6	0	12
East Liverpool	0	0	0	6	6

CLOSEUP OF NEW TIMBER FOR LOCAL HOCKEY TEAM

No, this is not a picture of a new goalie candidate for the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets in action, yet it is a new goalie, in a sense . . . It is a contraption rigged up by Coach Charley Reid to improve the shooting aim of his stick artists, who began practice sessions at Duquesne Garden yesterday. . . . The idea is to have the goal-seekers shoot at those portions of the net least likely to be protected by a goalie. . . . Shots to the corners, especially the upper angles, give the goal-tenders the most trouble, and the aim of Coach Reid is to have his men get that aim, you see. . . . The moral, if any, is that all is not goalie that's hemlock. . . . But it's in the wood to—but you get the point.

Don't be surprised if Penn makes a great showing against Notre Dame at South Bend Saturday . . . The Quakers, coached by Harvey Harman, former Pitt tackle, with Alec Fox, former Pitt guard, assisting him, have yet to lose, after having played five games, and have been taking every battle in their stride . . . They were a bit off in beating Lafayette by only 3-0 last Saturday, which may have been due to the fact that they were pointing for the Irish, following their 27-13 win over Wisconsin the week before . . . At least, there won't be any 60-20 rout, as was the case at Franklin Field last year . . . And the Irish are apt to suffer a letdown almost any time now, after their two successive tough games with Pitt and Tech.

Chick Meehan's N. Y. U. eleven, beaten by Oregon last Saturday, 14-6, faces another hard foe this weekend in Georgia, 26-7 victor over Yale, which has tied Army and Dartmouth its last two times out . . . Harvard and Dartmouth should put on a thriller at Cambridge, and Fordham, now New York's only undefeated, but tied, eleven, is in for a battle with Detroit University at Detroit . . . And that Pitt-Carnegie tussle at the Stadium doesn't figure to be a cakewalk, either.

Did it ever occur to you that the National Boxing Association's middleweight elimination tournament being conducted in Milwaukee has boasted a great entry list of nobodies and never-willbes? . . . The Arena in Philadelphia has gone in for cut prices for its boxing shows, beginning with its George Courtney-Billy Jones card next Monday night . . . Frankie Cawley and Tony Galento are in the semi-final at $2 tops . . . Adolph Heuser, the German boxer who has just arrived in this country, is said to be a ringer for Jack Dillon, the former Hoosier Bearcat . . . Georgie Ward, a contemporary welterweight rival of Mickey Walker in the latter's early days in the ring, now is a boxing promoter in Orange, N. J.

Reports have it that Chick Meehan may quit as head coach at New York University when his three-year contract expires with the playing of the Carnegie Tech game on Thanksgiving Day unless the Violet authorities match financial offers he is said to have received from other quarters . . . N. Y. U. had to give him a boost to retain him in 1927.—HARRY KECK.

Yanks Add Rookie To Training Party

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The Yankees have added George Selkirk, a young outfielder who hit .310 for the Jersey City International League Club last season, to the roster of promising ball players they will take to their training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., next spring. The outright purchase of Selkirk was completed as soon as the closed season for deals between major and minor league clubs ended. It also was announced that Cy Perkins, veteran catcher who had been given his unconditional release in November, might be signed again as coach and bull pen catcher.

PIMLICO MUTUELS

MATE VICTOR IN BOWIE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—A. C. Bostwick's Mate, twice conqueror of Twenty Grand, but a disappointment in his recent races, regained some of his lost prestige yesterday as he won the twenty-third running of the Bowie Handicap over one and one-half miles at Pimlico.

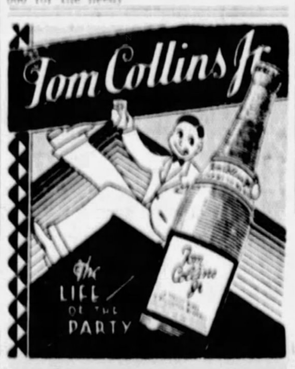
Running over the track on which he first defeated Twenty Grand in the Preakness, Mate earned $6,750 to pass Mrs. Payne Whitney's Ace in total money earned. The purse boosted Mate's earnings to $263,180, which tops Twenty Grand by $3,225.

St. Brideaux, less illustious stablemate of Twenty Grand, made a valiant effort to beat Mate, but lost by half a length. The Wheatley Stable's Blenheim took third money.

Packing 127 pounds, Mate ran the distance in 2:32, more than a second off the record. He paid $4.90 for $2.

$30,000 FOR NEEDY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—A rather poorly attended charity program at Belmont Park yesterday rang down the curtain on the 1931 metropolitan racing season. Only about 4,000 spectators were on hand, but a hurried check of the receipts showed that the extra day of racing netted about $30,000 for the needy.



SCHENLEY HIGH FAVORED OVER FIFTH AVE.

By JULIUS LEVIN

First place in both sections of the City League will be at stake tomorrow afternoon when the present leaders swing into action in the five league encounters on the schedule.

Schenley should have no trouble bolstering its lead in Section I as the Grossmen are slated to tangle with Fifth Avenue at Malone Field. Fifth hasn't won a league contest in three starts and will not prove much opposition to Schenley, which will be striving for victory No. 4.

Peabody, a deadlock with South keeping it from a tie with Schenley, will not engage in league competition this week-end, being scheduled to tangle with Norwin at Irwin Saturday.

South will strive for its first league victory at the expense of Westinghouse on the latter's field in the other Section I game. Allderdice, the remaining member of Section I, meets Rankin in a non-league game at Allderdice.

South Hills and Carrick, deadlocked for first place in Section II, are favorites to win their contests tomorrow, thus continuing to share the top position. South Hills is not expected to find Oliver a rugged opponent, while Carrick will be opposed by Allegheny. Allegheny has been showing improvement, but is not expected to upset Coach Lyons' charges. Langley will play at Perry in the other Section II fray.

School Notes

A decided improvement has been noted in the play of the Schenley High school eleven since Coach Walter Gross shifted Capt. Sanford from end to the backfield.

McKeesport High's football team will take a crowd of more than 400 rooters to New Castle Saturday for its battle with Phil Bridenbaugh's eleven. Bill Sullivan's Tubers hope to continue their brilliant record by winning their seventh in a row and at the same time keep their opposition from scoring. No team has crossed the Tuber's goal line.

One boy who is showing much promise on Ed Faulk's Somerset High aggregation this season is Tony Burkhard, second string center. Burkhard has given a fine account of himself in the games he has played at the pivot post this year.

The Oil City-Grove City game, originally scheduled at Grove City Saturday, has been shifted to Oil City by mutual consent. The contest will be a benefit affair for the Oil City unemployment fund.

Henry Leuchi's Mt. Lebanon High eleven will face its toughest test of the season on November 21 when Jeannette, coached by Art Dahl and one of the 11 district teams given a Class AA rating by the W. P. I. A. L., is engaged at Jeannette.

Fans taking in the Beaver Falls-New Kensington clash at New Kensington tomorrow night will see one of the best guards in the district in Clair Nevergall, playing his final year on Carl Gluck's undefeated eleven. Nevergall plays at right guard.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS NARROW

Share List Fluctuates Uncertainly, but Shows Fairly Good Undertone

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP.)—The stock market was unable to follow the pace set by commodities today, particularly wheat and silver.

Bonds attracted further buying, particularly in the early trading, but the share market fluctuated uncertainly, and acted somewhat wearied by the recent stimulation. Nevertheless a fairly good undertone was maintained and price movements were largely narrow.

Rails and steels particularly were dragged. Several of the chemicals and non-ferrous metals and specialties however managed to sell up a point or two at times. The market was rather heavy for a time in the late morning, came up in the middle of the day and eased off again, as profit-taking appeared in the wheat market. American Telephone lost more than a point, and failed to recover all of its loss. United States Steel was fractionally lower much of the time. Some of the rails such as New York Central and Southern Pacific lost about a point.

The stock market is now back to around the top levels of the mid-October rally and is regarded in brokerage quarters as in an important testing area. Speculative quarters look for efforts to boost the market into new high ground for the recovery, but cautious traders were natually inclined to take profits.

Wall street is particularly hopeful over the improvement in bonds. Some leading bankers think the bond market will get robust enough to permit some long deferred corporate financing before the end of the year.

The action of the New York Clearing House banks in deciding that they would no longer handle call loans for "others" that is, individuals and corporations, had been expected and some bankers explained that it should have a distinctly stabilizing effect in the long run.

The remarks of Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, internationally prominent money expert, in an address today, stressing the strength of the American monetary position and pointing out that the position of premier world money market is now being offered to New York, attracted considerable attention in banking quarters.

WHEAT SCALES NEW HEIGHTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Spurred by reports drought had cost Russia a loss of 150,000 bushels of grain this season, wheat prices vaulted today to new record heights. There were also predictions of smaller shipments of wheat from Argentina to Europe. Trade was on a big scale. Opening at ⅞-1⅛ cents gain, wheat continued to climb. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ up and afterward rose further.

Not only wheat, but corn, oats and rye outdid the season's previous top quotations. In the face of immense profit taking sales on the part of recent buyers, new purchase orders kept surging into the wheat pit, with brokers so crowded there that footholds on the upper steps were precarious. More than 2 cents a bushel rise was quickly scored by wheat, with December contracts the strongest, as being likely soonest to reflect augmented demand looked for to supply from North America Europe's breadstuff needs. Adding to the impetus of the speculative buying rush was announcement that Black Sea shipments of wheat in the last week had been practically cut in half as compared with the week previous and a year ago.

Retaliation or Reciprocity Tariffwise?

—By B. C. FORBES—

B. C. Forbes

ONE OF TWO things important to American industry and American wage earners will shortly happen. Tariffs in leading countries, including our own will be lowered or upward revisions by other nations will lead to more American enterprises in the form of branch factories being opened abroad. Which is the more likely to develop?

THE OVERWHELMING victory of Britain's protectionist party suggests at first glance impending tariff warfare bitter and along an unprecedentedly wide front.

But is it not possible that the reverse will occur?

Heretofore the United States, France, Germany and every other nation has felt perfectly safe in imposing duties on British goods, knowing that Britain had no ready weapon at hand with which to fight back effectively. Tariffwise Britain was looked upon as an easy mark, a weakling—if you will a sucker.

Very shortly Britain will put on tariff armor and be in a position to wage vigorous combat.

ALL HISTORY shows that any nation powerfully equipped to fight is treated with greater respect and consideration than one known to be defenseless. In military and naval matters Great Britain has not been obliged to submit to objectionable treatment because of international regard for her strength on land and sea.

But tariffwise Britain's defenselessness has been taken advantage of without hesitation.

NOW THAT BRITAIN is to arm herself tariffwise other nations may feel conciliatory rather than combative. Remember that Britain imports far more than she exports. Her trade has been coveted by all important export countries.

Canada, America's biggest customer since Britain lost first place, has announced, through Prime Minister Bennett, her intention of co-operating closely with the mother country in bringing about drastic tariff readjustments.

In view of all this, and in view of the possibility of united tariff action throughout the British empire, is there not a possibility that, instead of mortal combat tariffwise each industrial nation will strive to bring about conciliation, give-and-take, reasonable reciprocity?

THE UNITED STATES government has succeeded in earning the enmity of almost every other trading nation. Our Smoot-Hawley atrocity was most strenuously objected to by even our best friends and customers. But short-sighted selfishness triumphed over far-sighted statesmanship. Washington, in effect, told the rest of the world:

"It is our tariff. We will do what we like with it. It is none of your business. We are running this country. What can you do about it?"

Well, other countries have shown that there is a lot they can do about it. Britain's action indicates that retaliation has not yet begun in earnest.

WHAT WILL Washington's attitude be? What should its attitude be?

Certain politicians who were ready enough to build a Chinese wall around America to shut out imports, feel indignant that Britain should contemplate tariff retaliation against this country! Levying high tariffs has been our game, not Britain's. For Britain to act as we have acted isn't considered cricket by these astigmatic politicians.

Could anything be more childish, more absurd, more ludicrous? However, a broader view, it is to be hoped, will be taken by Congress. A policy of carefully-reasoned give-and-take would appear to be wisest on our part. We cannot, of course, hope to preserve inviolate a one-sided tariff forever.

Neither can we hope to maintain our position as the foremost exporting nation in the world, and as the greatest creditor nation in the world, if we refuse to buy from other countries. We have gone quite far enough—too far in many instances—in lending money abroad. This lop-sided arrangement cannot, by itself, bring about a final squaring of accounts.

IF, HOWEVER, the world launches retaliation instead of reciprocity, we can expect to witness wholesale building of American plants inside protectionist countries. American interests already have established upwards of 2,000 branch factories in foreign lands, giving employment, it is estimated, to approximately half a million workers.

Canadian tariffs induced many U. S. companies to start manufacturing there, with the result that there are more American branches in the Dominion than anywhere else. Europe ranks second.

Would vast expansion of American factory-building in foreign countries, entailing the employment of foreign workers, help or hurt employment and prosperity in our own country? This question has not yet received adequate study.

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XIII.

Mary left the suite of Buck Landers in the Metropolis Hotel with a determination to fight off her deadening weight of worry. With an effort she held her head high, her chin firm. If she carried her trim body as though she had nothing on earth to fear—then she would be maintaining the priceless courage that was her sole resource.

"I can't let down the smallest bit," she told herself secretly. "I've got to keep acting to myself as though everything is going to be all right. And everything is going to be all right!" And these inner affirmations, curiously, did have the effect of heartening her, and dulling both pain and fear. "If I think Steve is all right—then he will be all right," she repeated urgently. Of course, this was thin comfort, but it was all she had now and she was alone . . . alone.

As she slipped out of the elevator into the lobby, her gaze lit on a woman coming through the revolving door. For an instant there was a clouded effort at recognition and, then, she felt, rather than saw, that the woman was Carlotta Guido—the cast-off sweetheart of Landers.

SEEKS WOMAN'S AID

It was no miracle, not even a coincidence, a logical sequence of events that brought the Guido woman back to the hotel. She had been hunting the place for days, seeking to encounter Landers in the lobby, but more by chance than otherwise, he had continued to avoid her. No, there was nothing remarkable in the meeting of Mary Kennedy and Carlotta Guido, but what was really remarkable was that out of Mary's harassed mind, a full-fledged idea sprang instantly into existence. The Guido woman had hated her, but that hatred had little reason for existing now. The one person in New York who might be of assistance, who might join forces with her, was this passionate, vindictive woman.

Intuition, swift as a lightning flash, told Mary to siege upon the dark beautiful creature and enlist her aid. Beyond this idea, all was blank. Mary needed no more than the bare inspiration to rush up to Carlotta Guido, and batter her way through the all-hostile jealousy.

There was a leap of fire in Carlotta's eyes. "Oh—and so it's you!"

"Yes. And you are the one person I want to see. I want to talk to you as a friend——"

"That's comical!" The full rich lips curled.

"Yes, as friends. Or, at least, not as enemies. There is no reason for you to dislike me. I'm not standing between you and Buck Landers. You love him and I love somebody else. We're both in the same boat, Miss Guido. If we join together we can help each other. You have nothing against me, really—as a person, have you?"

CONSENTS TO LISTEN

Standing beside the regal beauty of Carlotta Guido, Mary seemed almost child-like. She was dressed in the shade of blue that brought out the color of her eyes, the delicate texture of her skin, the golden sheen of her hair. Her small, graceful body was a wisp of gentle curves.

Her words seemed to stir Carlotta Guido, and the antagonism of the woman gave way to curiosity and shrewdness. She looked at Mary narrowly.

"Don't try that pal stuff on me, kid. But if you can talk business to me, I'm willing to listen. What's on your mind?"

Mary's level gaze rested upon Carlotta. "There may be a way we can help each other. Will you come and sit down with me where we can talk for a while?"

"Sure. But not in this joint—Buck might come through. We'll duck out around the corner."

They found a nearby candy shop place with a long soda fountain, and in the rear tables and semi-private booths of polished wood and leathers. On opposite side of a narrow table they sank down. A waitress in cap and apron hovered over them, and they dismissed her with a brief soft-drink order.

It was too early for the luncheon customers and they had the place almost to themselves. Mary's heart beat hard as she realized the desperate, gambling nature of the game she had been forced to play.

"Do you know Steve Moore?" she asked briefly.

"I've heard Buck talk about him, that's all. Is he the boy friend?"

EXPLAINS

There was no wisdom in evasions. Briefly, Mary told the other that she and Steve were deeply in love; that her engagement to Landers had never been a real one—so far as she was concerned. She explained that she had done nothing to attract Landers and—to mollify Carlotta—attributed his desire to stubborn conceit rather than any deep emotion.

"But he has acted like a man with a mania," she rushed on. "And now he has done something to Steve—kidnaped him. He's determined to break us up—he even threatens awful things will happen to Steve unless I consent——"

"To marriage?"

"Yes, and if I don't——"

Carlotta Guido smiled a cold, ironic smile.

"Yeah. Buck Landers is bad enough at heart to pull a stunt like that, dearie. A lot of these eggs around here think they're bad, but Buck is about four times as bad as the worst of 'em. I like bad men myself. But what I can't see is—what does he see in a little farmer like you? That's what burns me up! Say, you wouldn't ever know what time it was unless you heard the clock strike. I'm the only woman on earth for Landers—he belongs to me and I'm going to have him—dead or alive. Get that kid—dead or alive!"

"You think I have become between you and Buck, don't you?" Mary queried with restraint.

"I know damn well you have."

"But don't you see—you can have him back, if I'm out of the way!" Mary leaned forward, her voice eager. "As long as I'm free and single he will hang onto this crazy idea that he wants me. Help me get Steve loose from wherever Landers is holding him, and I swear to you, we'll both clear out of your path forever. We'll get married at once—we'll leave New York. Isn't that idea worth considering? You know Landers and the type of men he goes around with—among them you must have some friend who would tip you off—"

CARLOTTA CONTEMPTUOUS

"Well, I want him back," Carlotta said with utter frankness. "With you out of the way, I could bring him back, too. Yes, if you married this snappy Willie-boy of yours, Buck would hit the ceiling, but he'd come back to earth. Yeah, you got the idea there, kid."

"Will you help me? Say you will!"

Carlotta lit a cigaret reflectively. "There's one guy in that mob that's always been crazy over me—Moe Levy. I wonder would Moe know anything—"

It was a slender thread of hope and Mary, with a sinking feeling, realized its futility. Suppose Moe Levy knew nothing? All of her hopes would go smash!

"Don't depend on one man!" she urged fiercely. "A woman like you—you could make any one of these men around Buck Landers fall for you. You're beautiful—you have all the 'it' in the world. Don't just stop at one man—but wait! Do you know a rough looking fellow they call Bat?"

"I know Bat," Carlotta responded.

"He's one of the men that is in on this, I'm sure," Mary told her. "Yes, I'm positive. Could you—could you work through Bat?"

Her eagerness brought a return of dislike and contempt to the woman's face. "Bah! You're one of these purity girls yourself, aren't you? A smart little weisenheimer! You'd have me do all the dirty work, and pull your chestnuts out of the fire. Oh, I'm willing enough to help you, but Bat ain't crazy about my type. He seems to fall for the chickens. Why don't you make a play for him yourself—if you're not too darn scared to save a boy friend's life?"

MARY DISAPPROVES

Mary sat up straight; her whole body was rigid, her face without color.

"But how could I?"

Carlotta Guido laughed softly at her. "Why it's the simplest thing in the world, kid—if you really mean business. I tell you where you can find Bat. Hunt him up and vamp him. Get him full of booze. If he knows anything about your sweetie, he's liable to spill it all—if you work it right. That's up to you."

"No, that's the kind of work I'm—I'm not fitted for," she said slowly. "I thought you might be willing to help me, Miss Guido. You know these people and their ways far better than I do. It means just as much to you as it does to me to get Steve free. With those men, you could protect yourself—and maybe I couldn't. Can't you see——"

A strange flicker crossed Carlotta Guido's face. Nothing of its worldliness relaxed, but in its great dark eyes there was a fragmentary change of expression.

"On the level, you are a good girl, aren't you? You know what I mean?"

Mary's face colored rapidly. She nodded.

"Oh, better women than you have thrown themselves away on men before this. I used to be decent myself. Kids like you are just a dime a dozen to me, but at that I wouldn't want to toss you in with the wolves. You mightn't be just like you are now, after you got through vamping Bat—I really wouldn't want it on my conscience. But don't think I'm chicken-hearted—I aint."

"But you want to be happy just the same as I do," Mary pointed out quickly. "Buck Landers means happiness to you—isn't that worth making a struggle for? We're both women—we both ought to fight together for what we want. If you would only do your best."

A NEW IDEA

"Oh, you don't have to sell me on the idea," Carlotta shot at her impatiently. "But it's not the cinch for me you think it is. I'm not a master mind myself, exactly."

"But the time is short," Mary reminded her. "Landers has given me until tomorrow to make up my mind."

"To do what?"

"To marry him."

Torment crept into Carlotta Guido's eyes; she was silent for a moment with her under lip bitten between her stony white teeth. She had suffered so keenly in her pride of affection that the tigeress strain of desperate cruelty was barely hidden beneath the surface. Yet she was trying to force her mind to be cold and logical.

"What Landers needs is for me to give him about six inches of sharp steel between the ribs," she grated. "But there's no use doing that unless I have to. Your plan is better, kid."

Mary's eyes began to sparkle. "I know you can do it!"

"Yes, I will help you—but it's dangerous. Wait! I have a better idea—it is not easy to outsmart Buck. Maybe there is a better way to get him. When he sees you alone he's too much for you. When he sees me alone it is the same thing, but—suppose the two of us go at him—together. You argue him in favor of me and I argue him in favor of you—he's only human, and maybe we can change him. It takes a good man to stand up against two women."

PAIR SEES LANDERS

It seemed hopeless, despite the force of Carlotta Guido's coarse personality that now seemed to be definitely enlisted on Mary's side. She tried to estimate the intensity of Carlotta's importance to Landers. It was grasping at a straw to see Landers again, but it was worth a chance.

"Very well then," she said. "But don't let's waste any time. He probably hasn't left the hotel yet."

They left the place immediately, and, outside, Mary caught sight of the sinister figure of Bat loafing at the corner. He had been keeping an eye on the door. Landers was taking no chances on her; this constant shadowing brought a hardness to Mary's heart. For the first time, the bitter venom of hatred began to poison her. Actually she had been so concerned with her own problem, heretofore, that she had thought of Landers without rancor. Now, at the first sight of the skulking Bat, she felt a shudder of detestation for his employer. A man who would stoop to such means was not only a bully, but a sneak . . .

Back again to the Metropolis, Mary marched with Carlotta Guido at her side. She had come to detest the place. This revulsion of feeling included everything, the decorations, the furniture and carpet and the close, smug air of its interior. But she was on edge now, and ready for the battle of her life.

Without telephoning, they got in the elevator and went up straight to Lander's quarters. They rapped at his door; he stared at them, surprise changing to anger.

"I thought I had made it plain to you," he said stonily to Carlotta, "that I didn't want you coming around here."

The woman mocked him with a flashing smile.

"Always kidding, aren't you, darling? What made you think I would run out on you, when you needed me most? Carlotta's big bad boy has got himself all messed up. If he's not careful, he's going to get in awful bad."

Landers shot a stern glance of inquiry at Mary. "You've been talking."

She was not afraid of him now. "Certainly I've been talking. I met Miss Guido and I've told her every living thing. Does it worry you?"

"You've made things worse for yourself," he snapped.

"You've kicked up a lot of trouble for all of us, Buck—but you are the one that is due to get the worst of it." Carlotta Guido told him swiftly. "I'm surprised at you—a smart guy like you steering yourself into all this grief. Kidnaping this girl's sweetie—God, you must think you're a Chicago gangster or somebody! Honest, Buck, I'm astonished at you, and I'm worried about you, too. You can't keep a thing like this secret—suppose one of those rats you hire squeals? Do you think you're big enough in New York to get away with that stuff?"

Her words shot at him like bullets. This woman was no young and confused girl—she had been hardened in the same wise school that had graduated Buck himself. For the moment, she had put aside her infatuation and emotionalism. Her voice, now, was as heavy as a man's.

"You're not acting like a bad guy, Buck," she went on witheringly. "You're behaving like an old fool—and I'm sorry for you. Actually, I'm sorry. Is it old age that makes you nutty, or what?"

"I want to talk to you as a friend," said Mary.

"You can have him back if I'm out of the way."

What Has Gone Before

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy, middle-aged sports promoter, realizes love is greater than riches when she meets young and handsome Steve Moore, Landers' ward. Buck surprises Steve and Mary as they confess their love for one another. When Steve refuses to give up Mary, Landers threatens him. Landers warns Mary Steve's fate depends upon her. He insists that she visit him to talk things over. Fearing for Steve's safety, Mary has him move to her boarding house. Then she goes to keep her appointment with Landers. He insists that Mary marry him and Steve leave town. Landers' henchmen knock Steve unconscious when he voluntarily asks them to take him to Landers. Next morning Mary promises Landers she will be responsible if he will spare Steve. Landers gives Mary 24 hours to decide if she will marry him. Steve's life is threatened if she refuses.

WELL OF COURSE THAT AMOUNT OF MONEY SEEMS IMPORTANT TO—WELL, ANYONE WHO COULD AFFORD TO PAY IT.
ANYHOW I'VE GOT OVER THE NOTION THAT I OUGHT TO TEAR ALL AROUND TOWN BRAGGING ABOUT BEING JUDGMENT-PROOF. SELLING EVERYBODY THAT IDEA WOULDN'T BE SO HOT.
THAT'S EXACTLY THE WAY I FEEL ABOUT IT. ESPECIALLY WITH WOMEN WHO ARE NOW FALLING ALL OVER THEMSELVES TO GET IN WITH ME.
MY IDEA IS TO SAY NOTHING. WE'RE VICTIMS, IN A WAY, OF THE FACT THAT PEOPLE SUPPOSE THE JURY SLAPPED THAT VERDICT AGAINST US BECAUSE THEY HAD INSIDE INFORMATION OF US HAVING MONEY.
IT DOESN'T DO ANY HARM TO HAVE PEOPLE—A CERTAIN TYPE OF THEM ANYHOW, THINK YOU'RE IN COMFORTABLE CIRCUMSTANCES.
I FOUND THAT OUT IN THE LAST DAY OR SO WHILE RUSHING BACK AND FORTH TO THE PHONE TO TALK WITH WOMEN WHO A WEEK AGO WOULDN'T EVEN BOW TO ME, UNLESS THEY THOUGHT I WAS SOMEONE ELSE.
PEOPLE MAKE A BIG MISTAKE IN THINKING WE HAVE MONEY AND WE MAKE A BIG MISTAKE IN NOT HAVING IT, SO WE'RE ALL EVEN. ALSO LETS NOT OVERLOOK THE FACT THAT THERE MUST BE SOME GOOD REASON FOR SO MANY PEOPLE THINKING WE'RE MILLIONAIRES.

This being my birthdate I did not lie abed like a laze, but get me up and run hither and thither crying "Hooray" and wake my poor wyfe and my childe and bid them tear papers into an thousand bits and besprinkle me when I run from the door to catch bus where I sit with confetti on my shoulders, causing people to gape and wonder why I am thus acclaimed.

The Election Results

Barr's Apparent Victory Is Cause for Rejoicing, But There Are Other Results Not So Gratifying.

C. M. Barr has apparently been elected, by a rather narrow margin, to the Board of County Commissioners with C. C. McGovern and W. D. Mansfield.

The importance of this victory for good government can scarcely be exaggerated. It means that honest men are to have control of the county's election machinery during the next four years, and that an audit is to be made of the county's financial affairs, concerning which so many serious charges have been made.

Senator Mansfield comes out of the election in rather an unhappy position. He made the mistakes of "pussyfooting," of making deals, and of concerning himself more with getting votes than serving the people. The consequence is that he has fallen in the esteem and even lost the confidence of many who formerly had a high regard for him.

If Mansfield had boldly repudiated the machine instead of seeking its aid, if he had fearlessly condemned the things for which the organization stands—election cheating, the spoils system, and extravagance and mismanagement in the administration of public affairs—instead of keeping silent about these matters, he would be hailed today as the Moses who had led the people out of the wilderness. He might have been chairman of the Board of Commissioners and the Republican leader of Allegheny County. Instead, through no one's fault but his own, he is to be the board's minority member.

The victory of Barr and McGovern is cause for rejoicing. And so is the defeat of the Volpe gang in Wilmerding. This notorious organization exercised an influence for evil that was not confined to its own borough. It was difficult to drive the Volpes from power because they have friends in high places, but the job has been started with the election of their opponents to the Wilmerding Council.

The old, corrupt Republican machine has been cracked in a number of places, and if the independents stick together and are wisely led they may completely redeem the city from gang rule two years from now. Shrewd and inspiring leadership is the principal requirement. A golden opportunity awaits the right man.

In the meantime, while rejoicing over the victories won, thoughtful citizens will be sobered by the smallness of Barr's majority and by some of the other results of the election.

Consider its exhibition of strength in the Second Ward, where Mansfield received 2,201 votes, David L. Lawrence, the Democratic candidate supported by the gang, received 2,164, and McGovern and Barr but 57 and 35 respectively. With thousands of voters so completely under the control of the gang as these figures show, the forces of civic decency are given something to think about.

And what are we to think of the victory apparently won by the discredited Republican candidates for the County Poor Board, J. Clyde Miller, W. L. Henderson and H. H. Dixon, whose irregularities, as exposed by an official board of investigation, have cost the people many thousands of dollars?

What are we to think of the impressive victory won by Mike DeRosa, Jr., in the race for Alderman of the Twelfth Ward, in view of Judge Gray's denunciation of his candidacy, because of his criminal record as a racketeer and election cheat, as "brazen effrontery"?

These things show that there is much work to be done by those who wish to see the management of public affairs entrusted to men of the highest degree of probity and intelligence, and to such men only.

Tuesday's vote indicates that most of the people in the county desire good government. If they are to get it and keep it, they must maintain constant interest in civic matters and carry on from election to election under able leadership.

More Vote Indictments

It Is Gratifying to Find the Grand Jury Seeking to Change Conditions Favoring Fraud.

Thanks are again due District Attorney Park and the Grand Jury for a painstaking investigation of election frauds.

Five more persons were indicted yesterday, making more than 60 since the inquiry began. Among the newly accused is Patrick J. O'Malley, Republican leader of the Second Ward. This is getting pretty close to the top of the organization, and is conclusive that the investigation is being pursued without fear or favor.

It is noted with satisfaction that the inquiry which led to the most recent indictments had to do with the issuance of tax receipts in wholesale lots for election purposes. That there has been forgery and falsehood in the handling of poll tax receipts has long been notorious. The bold blow now struck by the Grand Jury against the organization's practices should have a wholesome effect.

The Grand Jury shows the right spirit in not confining itself to indictments, but in making recommendations for the improvement of conditions. The September Grand Jury's recommendation that a permanent system of registration be established is approved, and the suggestion made that legislation be enacted under which a grand jury engaged in such an inquiry as the present may continue its work until it is completed instead of leaving the unfinished part for a succeeding body.

It is to be hoped that some member of the Legislature will keep this recommendation in mind when the next regular session is held.

True to his promise, District Attorney Park, having put his hand to the plow, is not going to stop until he reaches the end of the furrow. The November Grand Jury is to carry on. More power to them!

Every Man's Ideal Woman

If you asked the average man to name the 10 essential qualifications of the ideal wife, he would probably begin with "Beauty" and finish with "A talent for cooking," or "vivacity" or "blonde hair." Which shows how little intelligence he uses in the most vital decision of his life.

* * *

Tommyrot! Most beauty is bought and paid for, these days; and almost any little moron can learn to cook, with or without a can opener. You can feed your body at a restaurant, and get your socks darned at a laundry—but you can't feed your mind and heart and soul anywhere, except with the woman who fills your life.

There is an Ideal Wife somewhere, for every normal man—but you can't recognize her by her permanent wave or the dimples in her knees.

The vital question is, IS she the girl to whom you want to go, when your head aches or your heart aches? Is she the girl to whom you long to tell your troubles and confess your mistakes? Is hers the shoulder you'd like to rest your head on, when you are "all in" or feeling sorry for yourself?

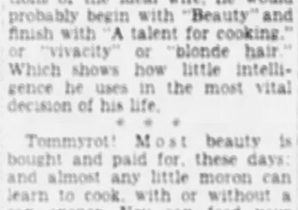
Is she the girl who makes you think of yourself as "a very remarkable fellow?" The girl who bolsters up your self-esteem and cures you of your inferiority complex? The girl who recognizes the really fine qualities in your character down underneath all the boyishness and selfishness? The girl who has faith in your talent and ability? The girl who BELIEVES in you?



Is she the girl who puts the PEP and the zest into life for you? Who understands your aims and visions and hopes? The girl who puts a meaning into your work and a significance into your play? Is she the girl who inspires and stimulates and braces you?

Is she the woman who understands you?

Is she the girl with whom you always enjoy yourself? Is the most riotous party a dud without her—and is the dullest party a riot if she is there? Is she the girl with whom you enjoy doing simple things—walking, talking, looking at sunsets, dreaming, camping? Is she the ideal pal?

* * *

Then, my son, she is the girl for YOU! Because the woman for YOU, is the woman who has tenderness enough to sympathize with you, brains enough to understand and inspire you, heart enough to be loyal to you—and love enough to stretch out over a multitude of your sins!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—I visited the Connecticut home of Gene and Polly Tunney, four miles out of Stamford on a lonely rubbled road, the other day and somehow wished that those who say Tunney is high hat with fame and riches might see how simply he lives.

The house, nestling close to the roadside with tumbled rock fence and white-washed swinging gate, is a story and a half—a white American-Connecticut structure of prim clapboard built 125 years ago. It is a Corot engraving set in the solemn sweep of tangled countryside, grim rocks and gray-spired churches.

Tunney bought the place with the rewards of one of his first big fights and has added to the land until he now owns thousands of acres spreading back of it. There are a small front porch, an Adam knocker, and furnishings entirely early American.

When a caller stops at the gate a big and friendly police dog named Roelph, that the Tunneys brought from Germany, comes rushing around the house to bark a friendly greeting. What our forefathers called the front parlor is the champion's bedroom. The kitchen is pine paneled with large cupboards.

Floors, polished by age, are spread with rag rugs. A gaunt hall clock ticks soberly. The living room in the rear is halved by a projecting double fireplace, the crackling logs of which glint brass andirons into cheerful splendor. An earthly cellar with bins smells of fruit.

Tunney is up at 6 a. m. for light breakfast and a tramp through the wild grandeur of the woods with his dog. In this way he keeps in condition. In the rear is a giant elm under which he stretches of afternoons to philosophize and nap.

Aside from a venerable caretaker, the Tunneys are attended by two male servants—a Dalmatian and a younger man from Brittany. In a fleeting glance at his library around the fireplace I noticed works of Shakespeare, Henry James, Wilde's Ballad of Reading Gaol, Van Loon's Life of Rembrandt and a thesaurus.

In the exclusive reaches of fashionable Greenwich, where the Tunneys live and from whence came the beautiful heiress Polly Lauder, the burghers are extremely fond of the famous couple. It was sharply emphasized at Cos Cob. Inquiring of a red headed motorcycle cop directions to the champion's home, he leapt on his machine and led us there with a personal pride that was warming.

One reason for Tunney's extreme popularity perhaps is that there are not any "No Trespassing Signs" on his many acres. Almost everywhere around these warnings are conspicuous. He has requested, however, that there be no hunting on his land and his wishes have been rigidly observed. The Tunneys go to their Connecticut retreat early in May and remain until late November.

* * *

No public idol in my time has been so honestly sincere in a desire to avoid the huzzah of the crowd as Tunney. Even skeptics who hooted at first it was an actory pose changed their minds. Following his marriage he remained a year isolated on the Italian island of Brione. Returning to America, the greater part of his time, save a journey to Russia, has been spent on his Connecticut farm and in the Maine woods. He has been to the theater but three times in as many years. And only to dinner parties attended by intimates.

* * *

I continually confuse the actors Louis Calhern and Basil Rathbone. Side by side the resemblance is remote, but separately I cannot tell one from the other. The climax to the mix-up came the other evening when I pointed out Mr. Rathbone as "Basil Calhern." And that reminds me that upon meeting the gloriously enchanting Mrs. Fiske years ago, in a gush of idiotic excitement, I gurgled: "I am delighted to meet you, Miss Minnie."

* * *

Then there was that auspicious return back home from a city business college and an introduction by my father to an old settler from back in the hollow, who was extremely deaf. Accepting the introduction I citified my reply with: "I'm charmed." The old fellow cupped his ear and inquired: "What say?" To which my father snorted: "He said he is pretty much a damned fool."

EDISON, MASTER INVENTOR

By Archibald Henderson

The passing of a super-eminent figure like Thomas Alva Edison attracts the attention of people throughout the world, civilized and uncivilized, to the lessons of a great life. For his influence has spread to the remote corners of the earth; and comparatively few there be now living who have not, in one form or another, felt the influence of the results of his genius. We speak of today as the Age of Electricity; and our modern era owes its name, in great measure, to his contribution. His work has contributed, in a pervasive and far-flung way, to the diversion, the comfort, the welfare and the happiness of the world. He helped, perhaps more than any one man, and in a sense both literal and figurative, to bring light into the dark places of the earth.

Consider the phonograph, for example, as one of the most conspicuous and spectacular of his accomplishments. Here is an invention which represents a happy composite of both art and science. It supplies amusement and edification to the present generation. But it goes far beyond this. Phonograph records preserve for posterity the great speeches, the beautiful music, the memorable voices and thoughts of each age to all future ages. In a new sense, man lives on through instrumentalities never known or employed before. For the phonograph alone, posterity will owe to Edison a debt that is unpayable, a gratitude that is incalculable.

The electric light bulb has had a more direct and more transforming effect upon the lives of more people than any invention in history. The story of his quest for the gleam is more thrilling than any romance of the Middle Ages, to more people of modern mentality and taste. He approached his task with unquenchable ardor and irrepressible determination. The task was a Herculean one, a task apparently impossible. Edison must discover somehow, somewhere, or manufacture himself out of unknown materials, a tough, hair-fine filament for a light-giving body that could be maintained at white heat for 1,000 hours before breaking; and he must make his invention so cheap as to place it within the reach of every man! The world, literally, was scoured for every sort of material that would serve for a filament. It is said that, first and last, $100,000 was employed in this search alone.

One of Edison's greatest triumphs was the invention in 1899, after much experimentation, of the first modern motion camera. It is not generally known, perhaps, that the principal manufacturers for many years paid a royalty to Edison under his basic patents.

It is not possible for anyone, by studying Edison, his life and methods, to become a great inventor. The native, original genius must be there to begin with. But each and every one of us can learn priceless lessons from his spirit: his courage, his dauntless will, his energy, his patience, his perseverance. Ideas in an incessant stream flowed from his brain. Notebooks, totaling 2[illegible],000 pages, are preserved, constituting an extensive, but by no means complete record of his thoughts, ideas and "hunches" as an inventor.

Edison was a great believer in sticking forever at a thing. He sat up with his inventions, nursed them, coaxed them, played with them, teased them, until the inanimate materials surrendered to him their precious secrets. He denied himself sleep for days, almost weeks on end—except broken snatches of sleep—when he was working on some important project. Edison was willing to try anything once—if for nothing else than to prove that it wouldn't work. Thereafter he could turn to something else. Typically American is his modification of a famous saying: Everything comes to him who HUSTLING waits.

The President and Borah

By Claude G. Bowers

The report from Washington that the progressive element of the party in power is seeking to persuade Senator Borah to contest for the Presidential nomination with Mr. Hoover is mildly interesting but not exciting. It is interesting in that the plea is based upon the claim that the revolt against the administration in the West has extended eastward as far as Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. Plausible reasons are advanced for the Borah candidacy. One is that his views are more radical than those of his party, and that the spirit of unrest would operate in his favor. The other is that he, and not the President, interpreted the feeling of the average American to M. Laval.

But Senator Borah is said to be skeptical of the possibilities because the character of the Republican party in the South would assure the President of the delegations from that section. And because these, with the reactionary sentiment of the party in the Eastern States, would make it difficult to deprive Mr. Hoover of the nomination.

And there is another reason: If, as said, Senator Borah is "inclined to support Hoover," he must be satisfied with the fruits of the Administration; and if he is satisfied his only reason for running would be to get the office. That is not sufficient reason.

Republicans in Doubt As to Hoover Election

The other day I had a long talk with one of the outstanding Republicans of the country. He was depressed and disgusted. This is what he said:

"I don't know what has come over the American people. They seem to have succumbed weakly to a sort of fatalism. I do not know a single Republican of importance not holding office under the administration who thinks Hoover can be elected. I do not know one that wants him renominated. But they simply fold their hands with a deadening fatalism and do nothing."

The truth is, of course, that it is practically impossible to defeat a Republican President for renomination because of the situation in the south. And there is another reason: If Mr. Hoover's administration has been a success, he is entitled to a renomination; if not, the nomination is worth nothing to anyone else.

They Never Speak Same Language

There was no natural reason, aside from sheer partisanship, why Senator Borah should have been the premier champion of Mr. Hoover in 1928—except one—he is a prohibitionist.

Mr. Hoover was known to be reactionary; Mr. Borah is supposed to be progressive. They never have, and never can, speak the same language. Mr. Borah is a Western man with Western ideas. Mr. Hoover is a Western man who has scarcely lived in the West from the time he left it for a career when 21 in Europe, and he has European ideas.

Mr. Hoover made solemn promises to Mr. Borah on agricultural relief, and they were not kept.

He promised to launch great building enterprises in the Western country, and he has not done it.

He promised to maintain "prosperity," and his policies have wrecked even the semblance of it.

He stood as an exponent of the Borah ideas regarding the League of Nations, and he has recanted.

He was going to "eliminate poverty," and the economic blunders of the administration and its flamboyant policy of privilege have plunged the masses into more desperate poverty than they have ever known before.

If Mr. Borah is "inclined to support Mr. Hoover," then Mr. Borah on the stump in 1932 will debate with the Mr. Borah of 1928.

Faith Is Lacking In Leadership

The greatest tragedy that can fall to a people in a crisis is for them to have no faith in its leaderships; and that is the plight of the American people now. The almost unprecedented popularity of the book, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," which maintains its place for months as a "best seller," is most significant. We are unable to agree with all the characterizations in the book, but it is intensely interesting and illuminating. People read the things that appeal to them. It is not a complimentary portrait of the President that is painted.

Thus the nation has lost faith in the miracle powers of the man who was to "eliminate poverty." This has been due in part to the blunders of the administration that have done such damage; to its lack of frankness with the people and the press; to its subordination of American problems to those of Europe; to its stubborn refusal to right wrongs committed as in the case of the tariff; to its evident conviction that the function of government is to serve the bankers, but not the millions of jobless men dismally tramping in vain search of work over the violated pledges of a discredited regime; to its dearth of constructive suggestions, its indecision, its misrepresentation of conditions.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may enjoy telling of your escapades of younger days when you are in the presence of younger persons.

To these young folk comes the conviction that they also have a right to participate in a few high jinks.

They can easily think that if what you did was not considered wrong, something more serious in which they may be engaged should not be looked upon as an alarming mistake.

It is easy for young people to think that the world has advanced greatly since the day of their elders.

Naturally they place the doings of modern young people in the line of progression no matter what it is.

So they go farther than you did and still feel they are within the bounds of propriety.

There is less false modesty—things are done more openly now, that were done secretly in your time, if you are middle aged.

For this reason you think things are degenerating.

But boys and girls are no worse today than you were and certainly you don't help them any when you brag about your early indiscretions.

The Rhyming Optimist

The Children's Home

There at the Children's Home they stay,
Little children, grave or gay,
Babies whose laughter seems all used up,
Babies blithe as a buttercup;
Flotsam tossed on the city's foam,
Little ones out at the Children's Home.

Toddlers stumbling into the sun,
Marching demurely, one by one,
Blue-clad ranks at their morning play,
Nobody's little ones, grave or gay;
Lonely as naught else under heaven's dome,
These are the waifs at the Children's Home!

Lonely for lack they do not understand,
Lack of a mother's tender hand;
Lonely for love and a chance to live,
Things that it seems life ought to give.
May this thought, some way, to the right heart roam
And find home for some child from the Children's Home!

Isn't It So?

One-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives within its means, and maybe, at that, it doesn't.

ENGELSBERG OVERDUE IN JAIL STILL DODGES TERM

Wabash Tunnel's Cost Defended

TRAFFIC NEEDS EXPLAINED TO GRAND JURY

Taxpayers' Attorney Seeks To Show Property Is Not Adequate as Auto Outlet

The value of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel to Allegheny County from a standpoint of utility was placed at $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 by E. G. Kaltenbach, county engineer, in a re-hearing before the grand jury last night on the proposed purchase of the property by the county.

The testimony was interspersed with sharp clashes between Attorney Louis Caplan, representing Newton F. Hopkins, protesting taxpayer, with B. B. McGinnis, Assistant County Solicitor, and C. F. Taplin, counsel for the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad.

The hearing was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

STATEMENT ASSAILED

Kaltenbach's valuation of the bridge and tube at one-half the investment in the Liberty Bridge and tubes brought a flash of protest from Attorney Caplan.

Kaltenbach estimated the physical value of the property sold by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad to Allegheny County at $2,995,000. The purchase price was $3,000,000. Kaltenbach declared, however, that the location of the tunnel for a traffic artery gave it other value.

A new bridge and double tunnel opposite Ferry street would cost the county approximately $9,200,000, Kaltenbach said. Two years would be required to build it, whereas the Wabash tube may be made available for traffic in 250 days, he declared.

In cross-examination, Attorney Caplan was able to get an admission from Kaltenbach that the two-lane Wabash tunnel, 22 feet wide, could only be regarded as an auxiliary tunnel, and not as a new facility. Kaltenbach also gave it as his opinion that the Wabash Bridge could not be widened for four lanes of traffic without being replaced.

TITLE QUESTIONED

The question of the railroad's title to the property which they would sell to the county was raised by Albert T. Morris, foreman of the Grand Jury. He asked who would pay property owners in Mt. Washington should title difficulties on the tunnel property arise.

B. B. McGinnis, assistant county solicitor, answered:

"The agreement with the railroad provides that it will take care of defects in title. In addition to that, the title will be insured."

A. J. Vervake, superintendent of maintenance of the Detroit tunnel under the Detroit River to Windsor, Canada, testified that that tunnel, 22 feet wide and containing five curves, has been operated for more than a year without difficulty. Traffic moves through the Detroit tube in both directions, he said.

John E. Greiner, of Baltimore, consulting engineer, testified that the Wabash Bridge has been kept in good repair and that depreciation up to this time only amounts to 5 per cent of its present reproduction value. He said the bridge could be easily prepared to handle three-lane automobile traffic.

Real estate experts differ in their testimony as to the value of the downtown property which the county would receive in the deal. James A. Durning valued six parcels at $857,000, while John A. Sharp appraised the same properties at $1,105,854.

STAY OR PARDON BY PRESIDENT ONLY HOPES

Dry Law Conspirator, Free 2 Years After Conviction, Ignores Federal Order

Joe Engelsberg, Kline leader in the Third Ward, today continued to dodge the Allegheny County Jail, where he is overdue to serve a six months' sentence on a bootlegging charge. He is out on bond and was to have surrendered yesterday.

Attorneys are working along two lines to prevent the Hill district politician beginning his sentence, which the United States Supreme Court refused to review.

One is by a stay of execution and the other by a presidential pardon. Yesterday Engelsberg's attorney, Charles B. Prichard, sought a stay from Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, who refused to act in the absence of United States District Attorney Louis P. Graham. Today Graham was on hand, but Judge McVicar was absent.

United States Attorney Graham today had Engelsberg's application for a presidential pardon. It was filed yesterday in Washington and immediately forwarded to Pittsburgh.

In making a plea for a stay of sentence, it was said that Engelsberg's wife is ill in a Philadelphia hospital.

Convicted two years ago of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, he has avoided jail by appeals to higher courts. Several weeks ago the Supreme Court handed down a mandate in which the federal court's sentence of six months was upheld. Last Friday the Clerk of Courts sent a notice for Engelsburg to appear within five days. The time limit ended yesterday.

Engelsburg was convicted on two counts of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act. Virtually every legal appeal was made to halt the execution of the sentence.

HIT-RUN DRIVER SOUGHT HERE

Police today sought a hit-run automobile driver who ran down James McCoskey, 48, of 1122 Maple avenue, of Wilkinsburg, a railroad worker. McCoskey suffered a fractured right knee and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. McCoskey was working at Twenty-first and Carson streets.

Albert Florzack, 8, of 612 Hazel street, was injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Jerry McCarthy, 1411 Fifth avenue, McKeesport. The child was removed to McKeesport Hospital.

Allegheny River Boulevard Rich in Scenic and Historic Interest

In few places in this district is finer scenery than the river views along the new Allegheny River boulevard from Highland Park to Verona. The new roadway is completed except for a short stretch past the Nadine Pumping Station.

Picturesque stone stop-over platforms are situated at intervals along the bolevard where motorists may park and contemplate the river scenery.

This river section is rich with historic significance, of the French and Indian War period, when Kittanning was captured by the Indians.

Trees and shrubs planted along the hillside where the road was cut through have done much to alleviate the barren newness of rock and clay which characterizes most freshly finished roads.

The hillside drainage gutters are made of rough stone, better suited to the natural landscaping than smooth concrete drains.

BURNED BOY, 5, DIES HERE

Burned while playing with fire, Thomas Nee, 5, of 2020 Watson street, died early today in Mercy Hospital.

Thomas and his friends, Billy, 4, and Betty, 3, children of W. J. Ferguson, of 2009 Watson street, found a rubbish pile yesterday against a frame house at 2021 Watson street. Thomas is said to have procured matches and lighted the pile. His clothing ignited.

Brakeman Killed In P. & L. E. Yards

Jesse L. Richards, brakeman, was killed last night when he was knocked from the top of a freight car while the train was passing under a low bridge in the South Side yards of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

Richards, who lives at 819 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, fell between two moving cars. His legs were severed. He died shortly after he was removed to South Side Hospital.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 5.—To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I always told you that there was just three towns in the whole of America that was different and distinct: New Orleans, Frisco and San Antonio. They each got something that even the most persistent chamber of commerce can't standardize. Say, what do you know about the Democrats walking away with the next Congress? I am going to try and get out here in the mesquite brush about 80 miles at Uvalde, Tex., and see an old prairie dog—Jack Garner—that is going to be the next Speaker of the House. And, funny thing, he was Nick's best friend. Yours, . . WILL.

Swivel Chair Fleet Sailing Up the Potomac

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

New Navy commission meets today in Washington. First prize is a Grecian tear urn.

If you see a flag flying from President Gardiner's boat you will know the owner is aboard.

The concensus of whispers indicates that there will be an apology signed by five reliable witnesses.

There is no doubt that both sides are sincere. And we enjoy all these commissions because we love to hear the happy prattle of childish voices.

They have a nice day for it.

Five parking and traffic control ordinances, affecting East End motorists, have been recommended to the Director of Public Safety by the Better Traffic Committee for a 60-day trial.

They are:

Restricted parking for one hour between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. on both sides of Walnut street from Ivy street to Aiken avenue.

Prohibited parking during the same hours on the east side of Forty-third street from Willow street to the railroad, and on both sides of Braddock avenue from Hamilton avenue to Formosa way.

WARNING ISSUED ON WATER SUPPLY

Pittsburgh Bureau Notifies Homestead of Increased Cost of Filtration Plant

J. H. Kennon, managing engineer of Pittsburgh's Bureau of Water, has struck a warning note concerning Homestead's future water supply, by pointing out that the acid content of the Allegheny River, the source of the borough's supply, has increased to such an extent that the cost of treating it for home consumption is nearing the prohibitive mark.

Homestead purchases its water from Pittsburgh. The water is pumped from the river into the filtration beds, then carried to the reservoir.

During his period of government was built the fence marking the beginning of Wall Street, today the great financial center of America.

PAPALES MEET OAKLAND

With the West Penn Conference East End teams idle on Sunday, fans following the fortunes of the independent gridiron will have to turn to the lightweights for the afternoon's entertainment, provided the scheduled games are not stopped by police.

The best game in the East End will find the league-leading East Liberty Papales clashing with Oakland Community at the Frazier street grounds.

The McKeesport Olympics probably will remain idle next Sunday. The Rooney game took a terrible toll and with two games scheduled the following week, it is quite possible that Bull Boyer will give the squad a well earned rest.

With only 14 players on his regular list, Boyer may have Goldberg, Kaletz, English, Newlin and Minnick finish the season on the sidelines.

Goldberg was hurt seriously Sunday. Peeny Newlin replaced Goldberg, but he also was hopping around on one leg.

Carroll, one of the best halfbacks in the Conference, is wearing a steel brace, so it becomes evident that Boyer and his outfit need a rest. McKeesport has been operating with the smallest squad ever in a Conference game and the players cannot stand that punishment.

CUP GAMES TOP SOCCER CARD

With league warfare on the sidelines of local soccer this weekend, fans following the game will have the West Penn cup eliminations to become enthused over and many interesting games are scheduled.

Saturday at the Westinghouse High School Stadium, the Cecil team, of the Keystone League, will meet Clan Douglas, Central League champion, in a first round game.

Followers of the Central League are banking on the efforts of Craig and McDonald to hold the Cecil team in check. This is the best backfield combination in the Central.

Sunday the fans can make one trip to Kennywood Park, where Duquesne Republicans clash with German Sport.

The fans up the Monongahela River will see one of the finest soccer combinations in the district when the Germans swing into action. Playing purely scientific soccer, the club loses its games from the lack of a finishing punch.

E. Pittsburgh Club Hears Book Review

Mrs. Harry Tompkins directed the program of the Woman's Club of East Pittsburgh Tuesday night in the Howard Street School. The meeting subject was "Cycles of Fashions, Furnishings and Music." Mrs. C. V. Starrett, of the English department of the University of Pittsburgh, gave a book review.

Edgewood Cleaning Co. Celebrates A Step Forward In Business

MIRACLEAN

NOT 2 YEARS OLD IN PITTSBURGH

But MANY Years Ahead of Ordinary Dry Cleaning!

To be exact, it was in February, 1930, that the Edgewood Cleaning Co. introduced Miraclean to Pittsburgh. And it was an introduction that completely changed Pittsburgh's idea about cleaning. Thousands of men and women, who are always on the alert for better value, were glad to give Miraclean a trial in the hope that they would at last be able to get dry cleaning that was a step ahead of the ordinary. We don't need to say they got it—for these same men and women are still Edgewood customers—and so are thousands of their friends to whom they gladly passed the good news along. Try wearing Miracleaned clothes yourself—see how much fresher and cleaner your clothes really can be, when they are Miracleaned. And remember—only Edgewood Cleaning Co. gives you Miraclean in Pittsburgh.
